FEAR FAMILY OF THREE PERISHED IN FLAMES

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., July 24.—Authorities here today were investigating the finding of ashes, supposedly human, which were discovered yesterday in the ruins of a burned house at Mobley, near here. Lot Loudenslager, 34, was the owner of the house. He and his wife, Nora, 45, and the latter's 14-year-old daughter, Annabelle Hupp, have been missing since Saturday night.

A half brother of Loudenslager, Melvin Slider, 23, who resided with the family, is being held here for investigation.

Close neighbors of the missing family reported that they had heard

FUNERAL RITES PLANNED FOR FAMOUS AVIATION PIONEER

HAMMONDSPOUT, N. Y., July 24.—Here, in the picturesque village of Hammondsport, known locally as the "cradle of aviation," Glenn R. Curtiss, world famous aviation pioneer who died unexpectedly in a Buffalo hospital, will be buried at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It was here, at the old race track, on July 4, 1908, that this

HINDENBURG HALTS VISIT FOLLOWING BRIDGE COLLAPSE

Recover 36 Bodies; Fear Many More Lost Lives

BERLIN, July 24. — President Paul von Hindenburg was back at his desk today following his return from the Rhineland sector after he had curtailed his trip through the liberated regions because of the tragedy at Coblenz.

Officially, police there have announced that thirty-six bodies have been recovered, but many more persons were feared dead in the crash of the pontoon bridge over a branch of the Moselle River while a crowd of 100 watched the illumination of Ehrenbreitstein Castle.

A large crowd greeted the weary old soldier-statesman and his party when they arrived at the railroad station. President von Hindenburg gave indication of being deeply moved by the disaster. He cancelled the remainder of his Rhineland program yesterday.

Flags in the city flew a half mast and an investigation into the bridge crash was ordered by the minister of communications.

The victims were buried today. Six-year-old Raymond Lawler of Akron, O., was one of those to lose his life. With his mother, Mrs. Wallace Lawler, he had been visiting his grandparents at Coblenz. His father is an employee of a rubber company at Akron.

YOUNGSTOWN OPENS WAR ON RACKETEERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24.—Working under a threat of federal investigation, police here today launched an intensive drive against racketeering and vice.

An ultimatum was placed before the police department yesterday by Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan, who declared that "unless the police department can cope with the situation here, I am going to ask the assistance of the government."

Mayor Heffernan charged that 80 per cent of the Youngstown police are receiving bribes from the underworld. One detective, the mayor alleged, is "making three times as much as the chief of detectives."

Mayor Heffernan also revealed that since he has been mayor he has turned down opportunities to make $1,000 a week.

"Racketeers have issued a challenge to the city," the mayor said. "They say we are not big enough to stop them."

AMERICA FAVORED IN DAVIS CUP DRAW

PARIS, July 24.—America's Davis cup team was favored in the draw today when Bill Tilden was paired with Jean Borotra, bounding basque, in the opening singles match Friday against France for the most coveted tennis trophy in the world.

Following the Tilden-Borotra clash, George M. Lott will face Henri Cochet, France's greatest star.

On Saturday John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, American doubles team, will probably clash with Cochet and Borotra, unless France should decide on the other doubles combination of Boussous and Brugnon.

On Sunday the final singles matches will be played, with Tilden meeting Cochet, his nemesis, and Lott crossing raquets with Borotra.

MINISTER IS SHOT

Constantine Angelescu, acting minister of the interior of Rumania, is near death from a would-be assassin's bullet at Bucharest, presumably in revenge for the firm measures taken by the government against anti-Jewish rioters. The assassin is believed to be a student Fascist anti-Semite.

DECAPITATED WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON FARM

Gruesome Discovery Reveals Murder Mystery In Ohio

HUDSON, O., July 24.—Investigation was pressed here today into the murder of an expensively dressed woman, whose decapitated and slaughtered body was found last night in the thick undergrowth of a blackberry patch on the outskirts of the Cleveland boy's farm near here.

The body was discovered by Clarence Collins, a 13-year-old boy, who had gone to the patch to pick berries for his mother.

Authorities who were called to the scene found the woman's head, its features unrecognizable, lying about ten feet away from the body. One of the woman's legs, which was severed from the body, was found nearby.

Dr. M. D. Crafts, Summit County coroner, examined the body of the murder victim. He said that it had apparently lain in the berry patch for three weeks. She was murdered, he said by a bullet from a large-calibre revolver.

The body was dressed in modish clothing. A pearl necklace, an amethyst ring and a large brooch were discovered in the underbrush near where the body was found.

Authorities were attempting to trace the identity of the woman today through the jewelry, her clothing and her teeth fillings. Search was being made this morning for the bullet that caused the woman's death.

Frank Collins, father of the boy who found the body, told authorities that he remembered an automobile driving up the lonely road to the isolated berry patch on the night of July 4. He was unable to give an accurate description of the car, however.

YOUTH DROWNS

BELLAIRE, O., July 24.—The body of Lloyd Hoover, 17, who was drowned in the Ohio River here late yesterday, was recovered today. The boy was swimming with several companions.

MODERN SOLOMAN TO DECIDE

Chicago Health Commissioner Must Rule Of City's Famous Baby Tangle

CHICAGO, July 24.—In the role of a modern Solomon, Dr. Arnold Kegel, health commissioner, today will announce the decision of a corps of prominent scientists enlisted to straighten out the celebrated Bamberger-Watkins baby tangle which has puzzled the parents of both infants.

Statements from several of the scientists have indicated that the infant now known as the son of William Watkins will become officially the son of Charles Bamberger and vice versa. Finger prints, however, refuted the conclusion.

The parents of both babies have promised the health commissioner that they will abide by the decision reached by the experts after exhaustive scientific tests of both babies and parents.

A few days after the births of the two infants the Bambergers found a tag bearing the name Watkins on the baby they took home from the hospital. A similar marker with the name Bamberger was found on the Watkins child. The babies were born in Englewood hospital on the same afternoon. The scientific test included stu-

DETROIT POLICE UNDER FIRE

GIGANTIC SHAKUP EXPECTED BECAUSE OF BUCKLEY MURDER

Round-Up Gangsters; Federal Probe May Assist Police

DETROIT, July 24.—A gigantic shakeup in the Detroit police department, as the result of the murder of Gerald "Jerry" Buckley, 37, wealthy crusading radio announcer, was seen today in demands of city council that Thomas Wilcox resign as police commissioner.

The combined forces of city and state authorities started the promised roundup of gangsters early today when a miniature, all-night golf course, the known hangout of hoodlums, was raided and sixty men and one woman were arrested. Another raid was made on an east side apartment and three men were arrested and a small arsenal was seized.

Police guards have been assigned to protect Mayor Charles Bowles and have been posted over the plants of the newspapers here as a result of anonymous threats that they "will get the same as Buckley if they meddle."

The popular radio announcer was ruthlessly slain as he sat reading a newspaper in the foyer of the La Salle Hotel. His was the eleventh gangster murder in three weeks.

Possibility of a federal probe into the latest slaying loomed as the result of Police Commissioner Wilcox's charges of "radio blackmail."

A possible motive for the latest murder was seen by police today in the revelation of an unnamed gangster that the radio announced had extorted $4,000. Police Commissioner Wilcox said he had received a sworn statement from the racketeer stating that Buckley had induced him to get into the alcohol game and then had demanded money from him.

Police accepted the extortion story as a possible explanation of the slaying. Buckley's associates, headed by the victim's brother, Paul, insisted he was killed because of his espousal of the mayoralty recall. Others believed his continued attacks on gangsters offered a motive.

Three men were held by police in connection with the radio commentator's death. One Angelo Luechli, who was found in an elevator of the hotel shortly after the shooting, was suspected of being the "finger man" for the three assassins. The other two were being held as material witnesses.

The governor, after a conference with Adjutant General John Hersey, of the Michigan National Guard, announced that "if necessary I will call out the state troops and bring them to Detroit to stop these assassinations."

CAPTURE CONVICTS

JOLIET, Ill., July 24.—Two convicts who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary, near here, yesterday, were captured today at Oswego, Ill., following county police search by state announced police.

The men, Arthur Dill, 31, sentenced to ten years to life for robbery with a gun, and Chester Davis, 25, sentenced from Du Page County in 1927 for burglary, escaped in the automobile of a prison foreman.

MERGER PROXIES STILL UNDER FIRE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24.—Additional proxies and ballot voted at the famous Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. stockholders' meeting last April 8 in favor of a merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation were expected to be attacked by anti-merger attorneys today in the common pleas court trial here of the injunction suit against the consolidation.

The votes of 128,400 shares of Sheet and Tube stock, held by eighty-nine estates, are under fire of the anti-merger attorneys, who claim that they and other proxies were voted illegally or irregularly at the stockholders meeting when the merger with Bethlehem was approved by a two-thirds majority. The questionable proxies are from executors, administrators, guardians and trustees.

HOW LEAVES BULK OF HUGE ESTATE TO HOBOES

CINCINNATI, July 24.—Bequeathing what the law allows to his divorced wife and $5 each to a brother and step-son, James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," left the balance of his huge estate to the "Workers of the World," it was revealed today.

Nicholas Klein, attorney friend of How, who died at Staunton, Va., Tuesday, said How had drawn up the will here two weeks ago. The estate is estimated to be worth more than $1,000,000.

Klein said that on July 13 he received word to go to the union depot here and there he found How, in shabby clothes and suffering from self starvation. He took the "millionaire hobo" to his home, Klein said, and at How's request drew up his will.

Ingebold How, the wife was left "whatever she may be entitled to at law." Louis How is the brother and Holger How, the step-son, who were left $5 each.

Klein, who is one of Ohio's leading attorneys, is named executor of the will. He said no plans for carrying out its terms had been made as yet but that How's request that the money be used for the "sole use and benefit of the workers of the world, especially for the education of the unemployed" would be followed.

A period of thirty days of mourning for How will be carried on by the International Harvester Hoboes of America, Jeff Davis, one of the officials of the organization, announced.

THREE ESCAPE PEN: CAPTURE TWO CONVICTS

Third Still Sought; One Hurt Fleeing Pittsburgh Pen

PITTSBURGH, July 24.—Three convicts made a daring and temporarily successful break for liberty from the Western Penitentiary here today.

Two of the trio were recaptured within two hours of their escape. A police dragnet was spread throughout the tri-state district for the convict still at large.

The men are Ralph Minter, 29, of Johnstown, and Freeland Preston, 29, of North Bessemer, both of whom were recaptured, and R. B. Canfield, 28, also of North Bessemer who escaped.

Minter suffered a broken leg in dropping from a rope used in the attempted escape.

The three men, allowed the usual freedom of trustees stole a rope from the prison store-room yesterday. With this rope, they scaled the rough interior of a vent stack four feet in diameter, early today, and reach the top of the prison wall, sixty feet high.

Here, they dropped the rope into the prison yard and slid down. Minter's broken leg hindered his escape and he was found hiding in a clump of bushes fronting on the Ohio River near the prison.

Preston, the last down, was seen by a guard and halted while Canfield, sprinting desperately, fled across the river bank.

Canfield and Preston were brought to the penitentiary from the Rockview prison farm near Bellefonte, Pa., from which they previously had escaped.

Minter was serving a term of four to eighteen years on a morality charge and Canfield and Preston were each "doing a bit" of six to twelve years for robbery.

AVIATOR SEVERELY HURT AS MONOPLANE STRIKES FOOTHILL

Major Eckerson Is Found in Wreck Trying For Record

BUTTE, Mont., July 24.—The condition today of Major Gilbert H. Eckerson, who suffered serious injury when his Bessie monoplane crashed into a foothill near Silver City from a height of about 12,000 feet Tuesday was reported as showing little improvement at Murray Hospital here.

Major Eckerson, recognized as one of the crack pilots of the Northwest, sustained a fracture of the skull and severe bruises about the head and body in the crash, which occurred during an attempt to set a one-stop flight record from Portland, Ore., to Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

The injured pilot was found yesterday amid the wreckage of his plane about seven miles from Silver City by Elsie Pogson, 19, who was horseback riding on her father's ranch. She summoned aid and Major Eckerson was brought to Butte by Dr. L. R. Packard and A. B. Sanders, an overseas companion of the injured aviator.

"I didn't realize the country was rolling and dotted with foothills," he said. "I had been fighting dizziness for some time when, suddenly, I began losing altitude rapidly. Before I could pull out we had crashed."

Major Eckerson was brought to Butte by Dr. L. R. Packard and A. B. Sanders, an overseas companion of the injured aviator.

RACING FANS ROBBED BY BANDIT SQUAD ARMED WITH MACHINE GUN

ARGO, Ill., July 24.—One hundred and fifty racing fans today mourned the loss of several thousand dollars in cash which was taken from them by machine gun bandits who invaded a hall here where bets were being placed.

The bandit squad escaped in an automobile after a mile-long gun battle in which the suburb's business street was sprayed with bullets.

Entering the hall yesterday in the guise of patrons, five of the bandits took possession of the place. One gunman carried a sub-machine gun. The bettors were lined up against the wall and systematically searched after the proprietor surrendered $2,700.

The bandits fled toward Chicago pursued by highway policemen.

SLAIN ANNOUNCER

Governor Fred Green of Michigan has ordered the participation of every state trooper in the hunt for the slayers of Gerald E. Buckley had taken an active part in the campaign to recall Mayor Charles Bowles.

SISTER OF FORMER PRESIDENT TO RUN

NEW YORK, July 24.—Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of the late President Roosevelt, will run in the primaries as a candidate for delegate to the Republican state convention on a wet ticket, it was announced today. Mrs. Robinson will be a candidate in the twenty-third congressional district, made up of Herkimer and Oneida Counties and the center of a controversy over prohibition.

BRITISH COMMONS CONSIDERS TREATY

LONDON, July 24.—The London naval treaty, which was recently ratified by the United States Senate, today awaits its third reading and final action by the house of commons.

The bill to put the pact into legislative form passed its second reading yesterday without difficulty. Although it is rather unusual for treaties to be embodied in legislative bills, this procedure was followed because the treaty while binding upon the house of commons, could not in default of legislation be enforced as against private individuals.

CURED OF RICHES

DAYTON, O., July 24.—A gypsy woman here today had turned the rejected weakness of her sex, talkativeness, to such good advantage that she talked Marvin Rohr into drawing his entire life savings of $600 out of the bank and turning it over to her.

The woman, known as Mrs. Stanley, tells fortune. She told Rohr that if he would permit her to hold all his money, he would be ultimately cured of tuberculosis. He did this but failed to note any improvement in his condition. When he sought to consult his "benefactor," she had disappeared.

DEATH LIST MOUNTS AS RESCUE WORKERS UNCOVER SHAMBLES

Report 4,262 Injured; 50,000 Not Reported; Homes In Ruins

ROME, July 24.—Beneath the shambles of thousands of crushed homes and buildings, stretching in a hideous mass of destruction and desolation over five provinces of south central Italy, rescue workers bent their energies today to bring some semblance of order out of the chaos left in the wake of a series of earthquake shocks that took a toll of at least 1,778 lives and reduced scores of communities to acres of dust and rubble.

The figure of 1,778 dead, with an injured list of 4,262 injured, was given out by Premier Benito Mussolini in his capacity as minister of the interior this morning. It was compiled on the basis of reports received from the prefects of the provinces affected by the quakes which rocked thousands of square miles from Naples in the north to Catania in the south.

Against this official figure, appalling as it may be, stands the fact that cities, towns and villages numbering an aggregate of 50,000 population have not been heard from since the first violent tremor struck terror to the heart of Italy shortly after midnight yesterday.

Throughout the night, government officials tried vainly to communicate with these places by telephone and telegraph. The quakes

SHOWDOWN APPEARS CERTAIN ON HUSTON RESIGNATION CASE

Few Still Refuse To Be Bluffed By Poker Tactics

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A large portion of the Republican party appeared today to be well bluffed by the poker tactics of national chairman, Claudius H. Huston, but there were strong indications a showdown was imminent.

Administration leaders this morning weren't quite sure even of the whereabouts of the "man-who-is-supposed-to-resign-but-hasn't." They think he is in New York, and to that end J. R. Nutt and James Francis Burke, treasurer and general counsel, respectively, of the Republican national committee, are in the metropolis to ferret him out and ascertain the state of his mind.

The possibility that President Hoover would take matters in his own hands and publicly ask for Huston's resignation was stronger than ever.

More than anything else, the G. O. P. fears an open fight within its own ranks, especially in view of the important forthcoming elections. Intra party squabbles Republicans feel, are something to be left to the Democrats and they have about reached the conclusion Huston is seeking to head them in to one. They are looking to the White House to avert a public rift and the opinion seemed to be growing it would take the president's personal touch to do it.

Gotham Leads in Rush To Matrimonial Bliss

Deputy Clerk in Ten Years Ties Knot for 125,000 Couples.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Marriage is a joy to some and a burden to others, but to J. J. McCormick, matrimony is merely the biggest part of a day's work.

During the ten years, Mr. McCormick has been deputy clerk of the New York City Marriage License Bureau, he has draped the legendary "ball and chain" over 250,000 men and women.

Brides and grooms of all creeds, colors, religions, ages and temperaments have been united by this emotional, fat man who presides over the famous "nuptial altar" in the Municipal Building.

Considering the serious nature usual permanence of these contracts, the binding process is completed at an amazing rate of speed.

June of course is the most favored month. One hot Saturday no less than 112 couples were wed by the fast-working Mr. McCormick. The record for marriage licenses issued in a single day is 216. Naturally the marriage clerk under such conditions has no time to impart fatherly advice or caution the participants against quarreling over who will dry the dinner dishes. Clerk McCormick works so fast that the knot is tied before the dazed couple realize it.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre. Adv.

MY WHAT A SNOWY WASH, MRS. KING. HOW DO YOU DO IT?

"I don't scrub" says Mrs. King

YOU'LL be surprised to know I haven't used a washboard in years. Why should I—when Rinso soaks clothes whiter. And saves them from getting that scrubbed-out look.

"On washday, I let Rinso's creamy suds do all the work. Rinso is all I ever use—no other soap—no softener. My wash comes so white, I don't even boil. Rinso is wonderful!"

Safe, economical suds

You can trust your finest cottons and linens to Rinso. The makers of 38 washing machines recommend it. Even in hardest water, Rinso's suds are thick, creamy, lasting. And it's all you need in tub or washer. A real thrift-boost; gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as the lightweight, puffed-up kinds.

Great for dishes, too—for floors, walls, bathtubs, linoleum—and all cleaning. Get the BIG package.

MILLIONS USE RINSO

a separate floor from the "altar." Here one enters and waits his or her turn with other couples.

After the necessary data has been filled in, the blushing pair is led upstairs. Here there are more couples waiting. When your turn comes, you are ushered into a small room decorated by two sickly looking palms.

Here the impassive Mr. McCormick says the necessary words. On very busy days he talks faster than Floyd Gibbons. Before the groom can answer the question of "whether he takes this woman for his lawful wedded wife?" the official is querying the bride on her willingness to be married then and there. McCormick asks for the ring, has it slipped on the lady's finger, the groom is ordered to "kiss the bride," and the ritual has been solemnized.

Newlyweds can pay McCormick something for his trouble or not, just as they choose. Most of them merely mumble "thanks" and stumble out into the sunshine to ponder over the rapidity with which they were wed "until death do ye part."

KENNETH KERR BUYS WILMINGTON PAPER

W. Kenneth Kerr, Wilmington, who is well known in Xenia, recently took over the ownership of the Clinton County Democrat from the Wilmington Publishing Co., to which he sold the paper in 1924.

Mr. Kerr will continue his traveling position with a Portsmouth manufacturing concern. It is announced, and employed William Hansford as manager of the paper. In the deal for re-purchase of the paper, Mr. Kerr disposed of his interest in the Wilmington Publishing Co., and retired as its president, a position he has held since the organization of the company eight years ago. The Wilmington Publishing Co. will in the future devote all its attention to the job printing business.

THE PRIMARY

To Editor of Xenia Gazette: Dear Sir:

Just some points in view of the Primary, August 12th.

A boy said to the clerk, "I want a bottle of ink to make me think." Any may this printers ink make you think.

We would like to assume that all are loyal, law abiding citizens, loving righteousness. But we are forced to presume there are some, more or less, who prefer lawlessness, corruption and graft and personal gain at public expense. Right here is a large part of the problem on election day.

Politics are honorable. It is the dishonorable conduct of unprincipled people that corrupts. Therefore all honorable citizens should exercise their right to vote, that sin may be kept out of office or at least handicapped as much as possible and society kept pure by God fearing men in office.

Prove your loyal citizenship by voting. Those who love corruption will vote. That is what corrupts politics.

The primary to a large degree is more important than the election in November. The one nominated is most sure to be elected.

Study the candidates, their habits, associates and ability. This is date are the lawless and gamblers, and bootleggers? And for which are the law loving and law abiding citizens? What kind of a public servant do the good mothers want?

Do not be deceived by some whisperings and idle tales, especially at the last moment. Often the right man fails of election because such tales create doubts in the minds of good people. You can tell by the appearance and wag of a tail (tale), the nature of the animal to which it belongs. The point with lawless is to elect those who will change the law so they can legally proceed with evil or who will wink at the violation of law.

A good loyal American citizen wants a man for office who will not wink at crime or close both eyes while crime drives on, and who will not be bribed or sidetracked, but on the other hand who has a high regard for his oath of office and will be a righteous servant of the people.

GRAHAM-PANCAKE NUPTIALS PERFORMED AT RECTORY

In a quiet ceremony performed at the rectory of St. Brigid Church, W. Second St., Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, Miss Lou Ellen Pancake, Dayton, became the bride of Mr. James Graham, this city. The single ring service was performed by the Rev. David Powers, Miss Helen Brightenstine, Dayton and Mr. Joseph Hendrickson, formerly of Xenia, were the couple's attendants at the service. The bride wore a becoming frock of shell pink georgette, with harmonizing accessories. She carried a corsage of white rose buds, lilies of the valley and baby's breath. Miss Brightenstine's gown was of powder blue georgette, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink rose buds and delphinium. Immediately following the ceremony the two couples motored to Dayton where a reception was held at the bride's home, 6 McClure St. About seventy-five guests were present for the reception. A refreshment course was served and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Graham left for New York and Atlantic City to be gone two weeks. Upon their return they will reside in Dayton at 6 McClure St.

Mrs. Graham has been employed as supervisor of telephones for the Krummer Co., Dayton. Mr. Graham is the son of Mrs. Mary Graham, Cincinnati Ave., and is employed as baggage agent at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot in this city.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Foust, Church St., left early Thursday morning for Medina County, where they will visit at the farm home of the Rev. Foust's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wylie. They will leave the first of next week for New York to meet their daughter, Miss Florence Foust, who will arrive in New York August 4 from a European trip. The Rev. Mr. Foust is enjoying a month's vacation from his duties as pastor of the First Reformed Church.

Miss Louise Hutchison of the Clifton Pike, was resting comfortably after undergoing a tonsillectomy Wednesday morning in Xenia.

Miss Mary Ann Wolford, east of Xenia, left Monday for the Hamilton Girl Scout Camp, near Germantown, where she will be nature study councillor. The camp period will last until August 12.

Mr. J. E. Lewis, who resides on the Charleston Pike near James-town, is seriously ill at his home, suffering from an attack of the dikes.

Miss Olive Mallow, Lower Bellbrook Pike, is taking a special course in journalism at Columbia University, New York, this summer. Miss Mallow is a teacher in Wilmington High School and will have complete charge of the school paper for the coming year.

Mr. J. Robert Dodds, Chicago, is spending several days in this city with his mother, Mrs. John A. Dodds, W. Third St.

The regular Wednesday evening golf tournament and supper at the Xenia Country Club was dispensed with this week owing to the July dinner-dance to be held at the clubhouse Thursday evening.

The women's missionary societies of the First and Second United Presbyterian churches will hold a joint picnic at Shawnee Park, Friday afternoon at 3:30. Mrs. J. G. C. Webster of Clifton, who was a delegate to the convention of the W. G. M. S. in Greensburg, Penn., in June, will speak. Dishes and silver will be furnished the picnicers.

Messrs. Warren Middleton and Paul Grant are enjoying a week's motor trip to Niagara Falls and Montreal, Canada, having left Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collier, Fairfield Pike, are the parents of a daughter, born Wednesday morning.

Elbert Lewis, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Hill St., is recovering from effects of a tonsillectomy performed Wednesday morning.

Mr. Arthur Whalen, Cincinnati Ave., is slowly improving at McClellan Hospital from injuries he received in an accident in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards several weeks ago.

Mrs. George S. Macaulay, Baltimore, Md., formerly of Xenia, will be the guest of honor when members of the Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church hold their annual picnic at the home of Mrs. J. R. McCormick, N. King St., Friday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock. Members attending are asked to bring a covered dish. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. George Weiss, Mrs. Walter South, Mrs. Arthur Perrill, Mrs. W. H. Tilford and Mrs. J. R. McCormick.

Standard Bearers of First M. E. Church will hold a market Saturday morning, July 26, at 9 o'clock at Poland Seed Store, 23 W. Main St.

Miss Helen Jones, N. Detroit St., is enjoying a week's vacation from her duties at the offices of the Dayton Power and Light Co.

Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Keister, N. King St., have as their guests for several days their niece, Miss Ernestine Pavey, Columbus.

The Messrs. George and Leon McHenry and Charles Peterson, Bellbrook, left by motor Wednesday morning for a ten days' trip to Cleveland, Niagara Falls, Canada and other points of interest.

Mr. J. O. McDorman, former Xenia clothing merchant, who until recently was manager of the Kibler Store, at Springfield, has taken a position with the Sherman Stores, Co., of Cleveland.

The Misses Virginia Kinsey, Mary Jean Layle, Jane Finney and Margaret Weiss are spending a week at Camp Wildwood, the Girl Scout Camp at Arneo Farm, Middletown.

Mr. I. W. Planck, S. West St., who underwent an operation at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, for the removal of a goiter, July 14, has returned to his home here and is improving nicely. Dr. R. Kent Finley, Dayton, formerly of Xenia, performed the operation.

Mary Louise Ledbetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlin G. Ledbetter, W. Third St., underwent an operation at McClellan Hospital Wednesday morning for the removal of her tonsils and adenoids.

Mrs. Julia Whittington, N. Detroit St., underwent an operation at McClellan Hospital Wednesday morning.

Miss Melile Taylor, Xenia, is a guest this week of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Taylor, Dayton.

Miss Irma Van Horn, S. Detroit St., is visiting with relatives in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Miss Josephine Wolf, N. King St., has as her guest, Miss Helen Snoutter, Frederick, Md. Miss Snoutter arrived Wednesday and will spend several days here.

Mrs. Martha Peterson, Columbus, is the guest this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Franklin, Bowersville.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE REACHES JURY AS ARGUMENTS END

Value of the shattered affections of Miss Erma Johnson, plaintiff in a $25,000 heart balm suit against Howard Faulkner, prominent young farmer, was placed in the hands of the jury to decide about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Judge R. L. Gowdy rendered his charge to the jury at the close of the summing up by counsel which occupied two hours and one half, an hour and fifteen minutes for argument being allowed to each side. Attorney Irvin G. Delscamp opened the argument for the plaintiff shortly before 11 o'clock and he was followed by J. C. Marshall of the law firm of Marshall and Marshall, who presented the case of the defendant. He concluded before the noon adjournment and T. Marshall resumed the summing up for the defendant at the conclusion of the luncheon recess. Attorney J. A. Finney was expected to close for the plaintiff.

The defendant, who occupied the witness stand more than an hour Wednesday afternoon, was back on the stand for conclusion of his cross examination, Thursday morning.

Declaring that his only reason for breaking his engagement with Miss Johnson was owing to the attitude she had displayed toward farm life, Faulkner said that up until the time the suit was filed he cared for, admired and honored her, and stood ready to marry her in case this fact which he believed would have been an obstacle to their happiness, might have been removed.

The defendant had previously testified regarding his financial condition. His property he said consisted of an interest in stock and chattels on his father's farm worth approximately $5,000 against which his father held a $2,000 note. The trial fans still crowded the court room Thursday, a number of women eating their lunch there in order to obtain advantage of seats to hear the proceedings. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Faulkner the defendant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Long, his uncle and aunt, Mrs. George Pillsbury and Mrs. J. C. Dodds testified for the defendant.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

INTELLIGENT PRAYER—When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:7, 8.

WHAT THEY LEARNED

The reason for the progressive disappearance of student indifference toward the navy treaty by a third of the members of the senate is instructive. When the regular session ended, there seems to have been a rather prevalent impression in the upper house that the country was not greatly interested in the result of the London conference, and that it would be safe enough to play horse with the treaty and make President Hoover as much trouble as possible. So quite a number of the senators departed for their homes, with the apparent intention of staying there and letting their colleagues kill or ratify or postpone action on the compact as they pleased.

But once back among the plain people, the high and mighty senators learned to their amazement that they had been all wrong about their constituents. The public was interested in the treaty and interested deeply. People talked about the need of measures to save the money of the country and about the necessity for furthering peace by ratification of the naval agreement. They began to ask the loafing senators what they were doing around the town anyhow with important public business waiting for them in the national capital. It is rumored that some of the runaways were rather glad to get on trains starting for Washington. At this writing they are still arriving in that city and the danger that there will be a lack of a quorum which will prevent a ratification vote seems to be distinctly a thing of the past.

Nor does there appear to be very much danger that the vote will fail to be confirmative—not unless the senate suddenly succumbs to an epidemic of acute mania. Because the manifest feeling of the country at large is pretty well represented in the letter which Cyrenus Cole, an Iowa Republican, sent to Senator Moses the other day, and which contained these passages:

"Vote on the treaty and go home. . . . The conscience of the country is back of the treaty that quibblers are still seeking to emasculate. That same conscience was shocked by four days of debate on a resolution to force the President to violate all the traditions of international intercourse. Even in Russia they would hardly propose such diplomatic indecency. . . . If the senate is going to bawl through another summer, the country will feel disposed to shut up shop. It has already been talked into all the distress it can stand. In the name not of the party, but of patriotism, vote, quit and go home and give the country a chance to recuperate."

It is this sort of talk, general enough and emphatic enough to make the silly contingent in the senate realize that the nation really has had enough, which is bringing the body to time. And the effect the protests from the country are having on it should give the nation some valuable enlightenment regarding the proper way to handle the upper house hereafter.

"Those distant suns have their planets going around them," says a columnist. Well, and where did the gentleman get this exact information ahead of all the hard working regular astronomers?

We notice that a list of the contents of the June bride's linen chest mentions a dozen bath towels, two dozen linen hand towels, a dozen guest towels, and so on. But it says nothing of the Pullman and hotel towels which will be the groom's contribution.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

ELIMINATING MURDER

Last year London had 21 murders. Seven of the slayers committed suicide; six were hanged and four were sentenced to prison. That leaves only four or yet cleared up. In New York in a year there were 421 murders and four executions. In New York there were 428 killings and six executions. England has practically wiped out murder by strict enforcement of the law.

Judge Kavanaugh, well-known Chicago jurist, blames public sentiment for difference between conditions here and abroad. He says the most popular judges in America are the most lenient. Probably the largest single reason for the difference is the delay in American court procedure compared to the fast-working English courts.

CRIME NEWS

Some, not thinking carefully, say the amount of crime news in the papers has some effect on the amount of crime. In the first place the amount of crime news, in comparison with other classifications of news, is not large. And in the second place, England's own experience shows that the amount of crime news has no bearing on the number of offenses. English papers give much more space to crime than do American papers. English papers print crime news in greater detail. And yet, murder is almost passing out in London.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Charles Wilson Peale, former Philadelphian who became a great artist, was so anxious to have his children become artists that he gave them great names. Fortunately he had many children and was able to use many notable names. He had sons whom he called Raphael, Rembrandt, Titian and Rubens. Altogether he had eleven. Two of his sons, Rembrandt and Raphael, really made good reputations as artists.

It is an interesting story, but doesn't furnish much of a lesson for other fathers. It won't make much difference what you call your son. It won't even make much difference what you tell him. The one thing a father can do for his son is to set him a living example. That's all that will count much.

FLATS AND BATHS

Henry Ford, whose investigators are studying living costs in European cities, may upset ideas across the water. Proposing to pay workmen in his European factories the equivalent of $7 a day in his American plants, he finds workmen over there do not live as they do here. Four or five rooms and a bath are for the European middle class. European working people usually live in a "home" of two rooms. There is uncleanliness and workmen get the idea they can live in better conditions. That does not make us unhappy in America. There is nothing finer in all the United States to show foreign visitors than the homes and gardens of men who work in shops and factories. And why shouldn't they have homes and gardens? Nothing so surely distributes prosperity among us all as the system of high wages. European manufacturers have some things to learn about labor and homes for laboring men. If Henry Ford can teach them he will have done a service for mankind.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

In what year did woman's suffrage go into effect, and what president signed the bill? The nineteenth amendment went into effect in 1920, after ratification by the states. Wilson was president at this time, but had nothing to do with the measure, since it was placed before the legislatures of the states in the form of a congressional resolution.

Signs Of Oil
Is a salty and oily flavor in well water a sign of the presence of oil or gas? Sometimes. Water can be contaminated by such flavors so easily that they are unreliable as signs of oil or gas. If they persist over a long period, they may indicate oil and gas. In such event a geologist should be consulted.

Selling Short
How is selling short? accomplished on the stock markets? Since stock must change hands in every transaction to complete it, the broker borrows the amount of stock sold by the customer to deliver to the buyer. The short seller simply agrees to replace this borrowed stock, whatever the price he has to pay to obtain it. If the stock rises, he must replace it at a loss. If it decreases in value, he replaces it at a profit.

America's Explorers
What country is most noted for its explorers? The United States probably is the home-land of the largest number of noted explorers, who include Rear Admiral Byrd, Roy Chapman Andrews, Prof. James H. Breasted and William Beebe.

Who's Who In Hollywood
Where can I obtain a complete list of movie stars? "Who's Who In Hollywood," a pamphlet prepared by Central Press, lists the stars and the essential facts about them. This may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin or stamps, to Central Press, Washington Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.

Rule or Ruler
I have a bar 12 inches long, graduated at one-eighth inch intervals. Is it a ruler or a ruler? It is a ruler but becomes a ruler when it is used as a guide in drawing lines.

Edgar Guest
Is Edgar A. Guest still living? Where was he born? Yes. He was born in Birmingham, England.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who In Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington" and Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government.")

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RALTE

NEW YORK.—I was reading a piece recently by Sammy Goldwyn, the movie magnate. It was called "Why I Prefer Blondes," and it had a picture of a blonde, Lily Damita, the prettiest woman in the world, and Evelyn Laye.

Sammy may have written it, and then again he may not. After reading it I recalled a statement he made to a newspaper man some years ago. He was discussing his aims, his ambitions, his "art"—and he said:

"You know that way I feel—I'd rather produce a good play than—well, than eat a good meal!"

"QUEER DUCK"

An old insurance clerk cashed in the other day, leaving to the Museum of Art a collection of ancient Chinese fabrics, second in importance only to that in the Imperial Palace Museum in Peking. The place he called "home" was the parlor floor of a shabby brownstone house in the Bronx. During his tenure there nobody gave him a tumble. He was known merely as a "queer duck." Then he died, leaving his art treasures, and now the neighbors are running "round thinking up 'nice things' about him.

Their excuse for neglecting him during his life is, I suppose, that they saw nothing to distinguish him from the crowd. And it may be true. What, after all, is there to distinguish any of us, save a mole or two (which we carefully conceal), and the eccentric way we have of denting the soft hat?

PESSIMISM PLUS!

The Duchess wants to know if the boys won't please lay off, at least till the cool weather sets in. Theodore Dreiser says the country is going to the devil. Clarence Darrow has just crashed page three with a blast against religion. Mencken is mad as a hatter who says women are cows. Cal Coolidge swears the country's prosperous. The workmen want men to kiss their wives often and old Irv. Cobb is unimpressed by his vocabulary on the subject of trust. Jim Watson, the "famous" friend of "Is Wap-pin" about the naval pact and they're riveting on a new building down the street.

It ain't the heat—it's the stupidity.

HORATIO ALGER UP-TO-DATE!

DAWES' OUTSPOKENNESS IS GIVEN AS CAUSE FOR HOOVER'S SECRECY IN LONDON NAVAL TREATY BATTLE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—If there is any field of human endeavor, more than all the others put together, in which smart-Aleckism is out of place, it is the field of diplomacy.

This being the case, one can but marvel at the selection of Charles G. Dawes for the post of United States ambassador to London, the most important foreign capital to which this country sends a diplomatic representative. Send there he was, however.

Hence most of the subsequent turmoil over the Anglo-Japanese American naval treaty. It would have been fought anyway, doubtless. Nevertheless, the state department's inability to publish all the correspondence relating to it furnished its opponents with the bulk of their ammunition. And when the part Secretary Stimson could not disclose was Ambassador Dawes' part—as too smart-Alecky.

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS, the Chicagoan had hardly anything to do with the naval negotiations after the conference actually had started; he had a good deal to do with the preliminary conversations.

That is, he talked with Premier MacDonald and other high English officials; likewise, it is understood, with the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors and various of their assistants in the British capital—preparing the ground for the more formal discussions to follow.

Concerning all these chats he reported voluminously to Washington. That in doing so he employed many expressions even stronger than "Helen Maria" (so it's said) perhaps would not have mattered so much if he had spoken flatteringly of the asserted functions with whom he came in contact. Unluckily he was far from favorably impressed by some of them.

Incidentally he indulged in a few pungencies relative to certain senators, but that was of less consequence; they were anti-administration senators anyhow.

THIS, AT ALL EVENTS, was the sort of literature which Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and his fellow critics of the naval agreement insisted on having submitted to senate, with the rest of the documentary evidence, to guide the solons in their deliberations concerning ratification.

Why the state department objected is no deep mystery. For one thing, if the Dawes reports are as spicy as rumored, making them public unquestionably would be tantamount to a Queen as King George's court and likely render him ineligible in Paris, Rome and Tokyo also.

POSSIBLY the administration could have endured Ambassador Dawes' embarrassment, had that been the only danger.

Political considerations, rather than admiration of the ex-vice president for himself alone, generally are supposed to have influenced Mr. Hoover in his choice of the distinguished Chicagoan for his present position; nor is it assumed that the latter improved his standing at the White House by inadvertently providing the navy treaty's foes with a liberal supply of high explosives to aid them in their fight against it. However, the treaty's fate was involved, as well as Ambassador Dawes' sensibilities.

TRUE ENOUGH it may be, as asserted by administration spokesmen, that the ambassador's comments had nothing to do with the actual ineffectiveness of the treaty. It has been evident all along that they were not of a stature to encourage its ratification.

All available information indicates that, from an American standpoint, they are funny; from the other treaty powers' standpoint, unimpaired.

Louder is poison to diplomacy. The state department instantly realized the peril of admitting any advantage to the anti-treaty-ites that would enable them to start Americans a-chucking. And even supposing that the pact survived the toxic effects of a good laugh here in the U. S., what about the consequences of Ambassador Dawes' outspokenness (were it revealed in London and Tokyo)?

Angered by his contemptuous estimate of their motilities, would not the offended British and Japanese be at certain to balk at ratification?

They say the ambassador was to be protected—if not on his own account, then on account of the treaty, of President Hoover, of Secretary of State and the Navy Stimson and Adams, of Dwight W. Morrow, of Senators Reed and Joe Robinson and all the rest of the American negotiators.

Their credit had to be saved, and the only way that could be done was by saying Ambassador Dawes' Otherwise maybe it's a fair guess that he'd have been tossed to the senate lions without a second's compunction.

They say the ambassador is somewhat subdued—temporarily. On his last trip home he told me uttered scarcely a word that could have shocked a Sunday school superintendent.

Today's Recipes—One cup washed blueberries, one fourth cup shortening (butter preferred), one-third cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, five teaspoons baking powder, one egg, two and one-half cups flour, one cup milk. Cream the shortening and gradually add the sugar, beating until thoroughly creamed. Sift in one-fourth cup of flour and mix thoroughly. Add egg well beaten. Beat well. Spread the well-beaten berries thoroughly. Mix and sift the remaining flour with the salt, cinnamon and baking powder; add alternately with the milk to the first mixture, stirring only enough to blend well. Add the well-floured berries and mix lightly. Turn into well-oiled and floured muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes. (The temperature of the oven should be about 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit.)

Drink Lemon or Tomato Juice

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Answers to Mothers
"God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers."
—Jewish Proverb.

"I am anxious to begin tomato juice for my month-old baby (it is impossible to get oranges) in using canned tomato juice, how can I preserve its freshness? Does lemon juice have the same effect, and if so, how is it given?"

MRS. S.
Yes, lemon juice, also tomato, cabbage and turnip juice are just as good as the orange juice for the anti-scurvy vitamin C. You can keep them fresh just as you do any other food—by placing them into a properly cooled ice box, but don't try to keep them too long. Remember that these foods are just as good for the rest of the family as they are for the baby, so have them frequently. The way to obtain cabbage or turnip juice is to grate the vegetable (collect the juice as it grates), then place it in a clean piece of cloth and squeeze it (wash hands thoroughly first). Of course, if you have a press of some sort, so much the better.

The lemon juice being so much tartar than orange juice will have to be somewhat diluted and perhaps a little sugar added. The same amount of any of these juices would be used. Begin about the fourth week with a very small amount—about one-half teaspoonful, diluted first and gradually in crease until one to three ounces are taken (two to six tablespoonsful).

We have a list of modern books on the subject of child feeding and general care. See column rules for obtaining this.

"My girl of 5 years gives me so much trouble with her food; she won't eat. I've tried and tried but I'm giving up hope of ever making her eat. She gets colic liver oil and I did give her a tonic but without success. She drinks three glasses of milk daily. She looks quite weak. Please send me your list of books on children feeding and care. In my last letter, I told you I weighed 210 (5 ft. 6 in. tall). MRS. U."

Maybe your little girl needs the appetite stimulating vitamin B. Mrs. U. First, I must ask whether you took her to a clinic or baby specialist to have her checked up to see that there is no organic reason for her troubles? If there isn't, try giving her some vitamins (can be purchased in the drug stores), which is very high in vitamin B, on her cereals. She should rest more, but have her out in the air as much as possible. Let me know if you succeed, please?

You need the reducing instructions Mrs. U., if you weigh 210 and are only 5 ft. 6 in. tall. See column rules for obtaining the Petersing pamphlet and the list of books on general care and feeding of children.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "ully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the cost of printing and handling; for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System Address Dr. Peters Bureau, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

If Engaged Play Fair, Is Counsel

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

IF TWO PEOPLE are engaged to be married, just how loyal should they be to one another—should they be in their actions? For instance, if they do not live in the same town, should either go out with others, with or without the other's consent?

I once knew a beautiful girl who was engaged to a man in a distant city. She wore his ring, but aside from that token of her betrothal she did not think it necessary to go. She was extremely popular, and men meeting her and hearing nothing of her engagement and not taking the ring seriously, would fall in love and propose, and they would be very indignant indeed when they found out she was not free to entertain their proposals. One estimable young man, after he offered her his heart and hand, was so angry that he would cross the street if he saw her coming to avoid speaking to her.

A girl writes and asks me what she should do in a somewhat similar situation.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am coming to you to answer a perplexing question. I am 18 years old and very much in love. I have never had a boy I loved him except the boy I go with now, whom I truly love and whom I know loves me. We are planning to get married as soon as he saves some money. He works every other day on a night shift, and most everybody knows we will get married some day.

"When he works nights I go out with other boys who know about our affair and like me. My friend never says a word about me going with other boys, as he wants me to be happy and have a good time. When I've been with someone (I always tell him whom I have been with) I can tell by the expression on his face that it hurts him very much. Here is the question I want you to answer:

"Should I go with other boys while he is working? Should I go with other boys while he is working? Should I go with other boys while he is working?"

with others and, after several dates with them, kiss them? My boy friend never has dates. He is 21. Do you think if he has rivals he will love me more and fight for me? Just your friend in need of advice.

"BABE," How would you feel, Babe, if, say, you went away from town on a visit, and your boy friend took other girls on? Not only that, but after dating them a few times, he kissed them? Would you love him more if you had to fight other girls to keep him? Answer these questions honestly and you'll have your answer. I should think that hurt look on your boy friend's face when you tell him about your other dates would be enough of an answer, without any advice from me. I think your kisses belong to the man you are to marry, don't you, honestly now?

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been going with a girl about two years and I think the world of her and she seems to love me. We have been thinking of getting married, but it has been about six months since I have seen her, because her father won't allow me to go with her. Any advice you may render will be appreciated.

BUDDY
Pretty tough to try to plan a wedding under those circumstances, isn't it, Buddy? What's the matter with her father, or rather, what is the matter with you that her father doesn't like you? Anything you can do about that? Do you drink? Are you a steady worker? You have been true to her for a long time considering you haven't been allowed to see her. Is she too young to marry, possibly? Or are you too young? If so all you can do is to wait until she grows up and then, if you are both of the same mind, and can't coax father to relent, well, maybe you can marry anyhow.

Exercising Will Right Flat Feet

By GLADYS GLAD

Every aspect of a woman's attractiveness is the result of faithful attention of every detail of her health and grooming. It is impossible to neglect either health or grooming and yet attain perfection. Women must seek to cover up their neglect of health by their perfection in grooming. Many conditions of ill health, however, absolutely refuse to be concealed.

This is especially true of flat feet. Smart new shoes may obscure, for a few days, the fact that you have flat feet, but in a short time the shoe will conform to the shape of the foot and your secret will be obvious.

Flat feet are as painful as they are unsightly. Simple exercises will correct fallen arches. Rise slowly on the toes while you count ten, then lower the heels to the same count. Stand with the heels on a book or slight elevation and lift the toes to a level with the heels. Pick up small articles with the toes. All of these are excellent corrective exercises.

Correctly administered massage of the arches will also do wonders. Grasp the foot in both hands, the fingers of both hands pressed tightly against the ball of the foot. This places the thumbs close together above the arches. Keeping the fingers in position, open the space between the thumbs, pressing against the arch as the well-floured berries and mix the sides of the foot. Don't be too strenuous with this massage, but use enough pressure so that the circulation through the foot is increased. This is an excellent arch strengthener.

In caring for the feet, the less oil you use on them the better. Far superior to the oil are the foot baths in warm water. The salty foot bath is especially excellent for tired feet. Such baths will make the feet much less liable to corns and calluses, and will immeasurably improve their condition of health.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Warts
H. H. H. and Jean S.: Warts are caused by cutaneous infections. It is dangerous to try to remove them yourself. See a skin specialist about them.

Miss A. R. and Billie: Lemon juice and dilute peroxide are excellent skin whiteners. My method of shampooing light hair to help prevent its darkening is too long to print in this limited space. However, it is fully explained in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Fallacy
Dolores Blanton: I have never heard of a line in which a solution of glycerine and rose water has caused the growth of hair on the face.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

PRIZES AWARDED IN VEGETABLE GARDEN CONTEST THIS WEEK

First prize in the county vegetable garden contest conducted under the auspices of the Greene County Farm Bureau, was won by Horace Ankeney, Dayton Pike, according to announcement being made by the committee in charge.

The second award was made to Mrs. Thomas H. Paulkner, Caesar creek Twp. Grover King of the Richland neighborhood and E. J. Kelsey, Spring Valley, were third and fourth award winners.

Other prizes were awarded to M. H. Rogers, Jamestown; L. M. Huston, Solma; C. F. McDaniel, Upper Belbrook; Pike; Mrs. E. E. Flaney, Cedarville; Mrs. Mary Tobias, Cedarville; Miss Margaret Thomas, Spring Valley; the Rev. Mr. Knoop, Spring Valley.

The gardens, all of which had suffered considerably from effects of drought and extreme heat, were judged by Prof. Lancashire of Ohio State University. The committee was pleased with the result, and with the interest shown by the twenty-three participants, it was announced, and the hope was expressed that the contest would serve to stimulate general interest in efficient gardening next year.

The prizes were donated by merchants, as follows: Garden plow, Cedarville Farmers' Grain Co.; Keen Cutter rake, Greene County Hardware Co.; 125 pound bag fertilizer, Greene County Farm Bureau; garden weeder, Huston Mickett Hardware Co., Xenia; hoe, Famous Cheap Store, Xenia; spade, Deaton hardware store, Yellow Springs; fertilizer, Alpha Seed and Grain Co.; fertilizer, Miami Fertilizer Co., Yellow Springs; hoe, Cameron and Sams Implement Co., Jamestown; rake, John Ferguson hardware store, Jamestown; spade, Wickersham hardware store, Jamestown; rake, Spring Valley Hardware Co.

The committee in charge of the contest consisted of: Mrs. David Bradford, Mrs. Ernest Bradford and Mrs. Elton Haines.

LADY, 72, TELLS WHAT KONJOLA DID FOR HER!

Says She Was "About At the End Of My String"—Read Her Grateful Words.

Strange, but true, Konjola seems at the very peak of its powers when pitted against the stubborn ills of the aged. Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mrs. Helen Baechle, 72, 1012 Purcell St., Cincinnati, who declares:

"At my age, 72—I had no idea that any medicine could help me. I was weak, run down and tired;

work was drudgery. I was bilious, dizzy and my back ached. I was just about at the end of my string. I wondered if Konjola would help me, and I surely was not long in finding out. I am still taking Konjola, but my digestion has been restored; my body freed from poisons and impurities and I am enjoying my work."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to cleanse and stimulate the ailing organs, and to aid nature in paving the way for the return of new, abundant and glorious health.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the source of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio, at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

From Queen to Peddler

Luisa of Tuscany and the Career Which Carried Her from the Throne of Saxony to Selling Laces in the Streets.

PRINCESS LOUISE & ENRICO TOSELLI

KING FREDERICK AUGUSTE

EX-CROWN PRINCE GEORGE

THE HOTEL AURORE at FIESOLE.

BRUSSELS, July 24.—Once celebrated, of Tuscany, uncrowned but as European royalty's most Queen of Saxony, now sixty years temperamental beauty, Luisa An-old, is eking out a miserable existence here tutoring children and peddling laces from door to door. Luisa, who once threw away the opportunity to become a queen, by eloping with her children's tutor, is said to be writing the story of her madcap experiences which astonished the world decades ago.

When her husband, the Crown Prince, divorced her, Luisa quickly tired of her tutor and married Signor Enrico Toselli, a famous Italian composer and musician of that day.

Rumor said that Luisa chose Toselli as a husband because she had found the decorous court life in Saxony unbearable and wanted to live among the Bohemian folk of the operatic world.

For a time she and Toselli enjoyed an ideally happy life. Though ignored by all her former friends and cut off by her family, Luisa was content with her new husband and the child which blessed their union.

But after a few years Toselli refused to work, preferring to live on his wife's income. They separated and the child was given to its maternal grandparents for rearing.

For a long time Luisa disappeared, but in 1911 a book written by her and telling many secrets about her life as a grand duchess and crown princess created a furore in royal circles.

Her husband, then king of Saxony, was so exasperated that he sought to have her restrained. During the war when the Germans took possession of Belgium, Luisa complained that her Teuton enemies were persecuting her.

Unlike her Belgian neighbors, she was not even allowed to leave the narrow confines of the Brussels suburb in which she lived. The German authorities feared, it was said, that she would make further unpleasant revelations about Saxon court life if permitted greater liberty.

In 1924 the world was once more reminded of Louise's tempestuous career when her 31-year-old son, Prince George of Saxony, announced that he was retiring for life to the ancient abbey of Trebnitz in order to atone for his mother's escapades.

The ex-crown princess, now a peddler and humble tutor, appears to be paying for her indiscretions on her own account.

TINY AUTO USED TO ADVERTISE FUEL

Xenians got their first view of the new Austin automobile, the British importation, late Wednesday.

The car was a special advertising the Fleetwing Ethyl Gasoline Corp., a super high test fuel for automobiles, and was brought to Xenia in the interests of the Schmidt Oil Co., S. Detroit St.

The car is now being assembled and distributed in this country but had not appeared here before and it attracted considerable attention on the streets Wednesday.

IF YOUR PULSE IS WEAK

the scheme of this tight-wad Scotchman may strengthen it up a little; he set his house ablaze so the fire department could water his lawn; we believe that "bird" would clip his guardian angel's wings!

It wouldn't weaken your pulse any if you'd stop here for good oil. Quaker State Oil is the best on the market, bar none and the price is no higher. It will give you no trouble at all and you will get more miles per dollar, more driving satisfaction per mile.

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame BY R. A. H.

"Mickey" McFadden's stentorian voice rang out over moor and fen in the regions adjacent to Cox Field Wednesday evening as the Little catcher for the Critterion team spurred his mates on to greater endeavor and steadied his pitcher in the approved and accepted manner.

"Mickey's" valuable bass is getting to be a tradition at Cox Field, where fans listen for his deep-throated cooing from behind the bat before they know that all is right with the world. McFadden is rated as the greatest pitcher-cooer in the two loops, partly because he talks to the pitcher in a tone that can be heard around the field.

"Mickey" sounds like a big-league backstopper when he unwinds his tonsils and projects a few remarks from down around his shoe-top for the benefit of his playmates.

Lew McCoy, catcher for the Langs, could pose for those Murad advertisements about when to be nonchalant, when his pitcher tosses a high or wide one.

Lew throws his chin in the air with the manner of a bored grand dame and achieves the return to the pitcher with a diffident air that impels the thought that he smokes Murads.

There is a story going the rounds about a recent fishing trip of a number of Xenians to Canada, when Mart Schmidt bore the brunt of a practical joke and that famous old bug-killer, General Flit, played a prominent part. It is impossible to tell the story in this column, however, because it would be necessary to mention Flit, and to do so would be an advertisement for the people who make Flit, and they might not like it.

The Lang Chevrolet softball team, riding at the head of the procession in the National League, is going to give the fans plenty of free entertainment this week-end.

The Langs have booked the Reeder Printers of Washington C. H. for the second half of a double header at Cox Field Friday evening, sequel to the Geyer-Carroll-Binder game and will play the rub game of a series with the Robbins and Myers Co. team of Springfield at Kilkare Park Sunday afternoon.

The latter game will be staged as a feature of a picnic for Lang employees and Lang softball players. Bill Baxley, who is the Dan Howley of the Langs, also announces that the Langs are already planning a victory dinner for the end of the season. He hastens to add, however, that the team is not counting its chickens before they are incubated, but that the victory dinner is planned whether the softball team wins the league pennant and city championship or loses both. Even if the boys wind up the season in the cellar (any bets?) the dinner will be held.

Joe Hagler, the Xenia race horse trainer, seems to have picked off a live one in Ray Henley, who has in his stable this year. The little pacer is going good, and it looks as if Joe should have a money winner in the three-year-old pacing events on the circuit he covers this summer.

Defeat of the Carroll-Binders by the Downtown Country Club Tuesday evening placed the winners within one game of the league-leading Langs. The Langs have won eight and lost two games, a percentage of .800, while the Downtowners have achieved seven victories and three defeats for a percentage of .700. Another victory for the Downtowners and a defeat for the Langs would put the teams even. The Downtowners have achieved this position by playing good ball and getting good pitching, although the team has never been strong at bat.

John Haller celebrated his debut at shortstop for the Carroll-Binders Tuesday night by getting two hits and a run in five trips to the plate. Haller was playing his first game with the omen, having been released to that team by the Graham Paints. The release has been approved by the softball commission.

FIREMEN ANSWER TWO MORE ALARMS

Firemen were summoned Thursday noon at 11:20 o'clock to extinguish a grass fire along the tracks of the B. and O. Railroad on Dayton Ave., at Little St. The fire was started from sparks from a passing locomotive. The lot is owned by Bernard Klein, W. Second St.

A run was made by the department to the O. S. and S. O. Home Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock when an electric iron had been left connected and set fire to an ironing board. The accident happened in the new hospital building at the Home. No damage resulted from the small blaze.

HEAT CLAIMS TWO
NEW YORK, July 24.—Moderate temperatures were promised New York today, but despite the drop in temperatures heat deaths continued with two new victims reported. Drowning also claimed two additional lives.

GRAHAM PAINTS SNATCH 4 TO 2 VICTORY FROM CRITRIONS HERE

Pitcher Herman Wells of the Critterion pitched himself out of two bad spots in the National League game with the Graham Paints at Cox Field Wednesday evening but he couldn't keep on doing that forever so the Paints improved their percentage points with a 4 to 2 victory in a well-played and interesting game.

Wells found himself in a bad spot in the first when L. Cope singled and Briley walked, with one out, but he got Kersey on a roller and fanned Hurst. He was in the hole again in the third when Bice singled but two force outs kept the runners from second and Kersey fled out.

Wells was in a hole in the fifth, however, and his support failed him at a crucial moment and two runs scored and he was in the hole again in the eighth and the Paints smacked out two more runs to win the game. The Critterions, after starting ably by scoring two runs on four hits in the opening stanza

Portuguese Champ Would Tame Primo

Jose Santa, 6 foot 8 and heavy-weight champion of Portugal, in addition to tipping the scale at a mere 255 pounds, puts forth his best fighting face on his arrival at New York from Portugal. Santa would like to meet Primo Camera, the Italian Mountain of muscle.

off the delivery of Kersey, regular Paints pitcher, relieved Kersey in the third and were held to three hits the rest of the game.

The losers manufactured their first two scores after one was out when Ernst singled and came home ahead of Hagler's terrific smash along the left field foul line that was good for four bases. H. Smith and Finlay followed with singles, but languished when Burke fanned and L. Cope took Hoag's roller.

Their next best scoring chance came in the fifth when McFadden singled. He was forced at second by Ernst and Hagler followed with a single, but Atlas Smith popped up and Finlay hit out to centerfield.

Wells kept the Paints away from the plate until the fifth, although they got a hit each inning. In the fifth Downey popped up to Finlay and Bice fled out to left. With two gone, Wells walked L. Cope. Erie rolled to short but Hagler dropped the toss for a force out and all hands were safe. Kersey then walked and L. Cope and Briley scored on Hurst's double, tying the count. W. Cope was tossed out by Hagler.

The Paints won the game in the eighth when Kersey opened with a single and scored on Hurst's double. W. Cope fanned but Haverstick's ptyated Hurst. Muterspaw singled and Wells took Downey's pop-up, this ending the scoring. The defeat did not change the standings but pushed the Critterions further into the cellar. The Caddies play the Ki-Ro team in an American League game Thursday evening.

YOUTH CONFESSES SNEAK BURGLARIES TO POLICE CAPTAIN

Volney Johnson, 17, W. Main St., confessed Thursday morning to Capt. Charles Thompson, acting police chief, that he was the sneak thief who entered two homes early Tuesday morning by unlocking screen doors and stole pocketbooks containing about $14.

Arrested Wednesday evening on a description furnished by Miss Bessie Bechtell, 14 S. Gallatin St., of his victims, Johnson denied his guilt until Thursday morning when he was again questioned by Capt. Thompson. The four stolen purses were found where Johnson said he had thrown them after removing the money.

Johnson took advantage of the fact that, owing to the heat, many persons were leaving doors unlocked at night, and simply fastening the screens. Using an ice pick he unlocked doors at the homes of Mrs. Wesley Kennedy, W. Second St., and Mrs. Virginia Bechtell. At the Kennedy home three purses containing about $9 were taken. Miss Bessie Bechtell saw the thief enter her home as she lay in bed about 4:30, and snatch her purse containing $5 from a table. Her screams failed to stop him, but she was able to furnish police with a good description, which aided in bringing about his apprehension.

Johnson, who gave his age to police as 19, was found to be not yet 18 years old, and he was turned over to juvenile court. He is said to have been released in May from the Boy's Industrial School after spending three years there. He is a brother of Herbert Johnson, 13, who was re-committed to the Lancaster institution by Judge S. C. Wright last week, after admitting he was implicated in the robbery of the E. H. Schmidt grocery. He was on parole from the industrial school. Two companions, Edward Thornton and Woodrow Vane, were also sent to Lancaster at the same time and three other boys paroled.

AUTOS DAMAGED IN CRASH AT CORNER

Two machines were damaged in a collision at W. Second and Mechanic Sts., Thursday noon, when a Ford sedan, driven by Landy Evans, Dayton, collided with a Chevrolet sedan, driven by Jackson Parker, colored, 68 Taylor St., this city.

The Ford, which was the property of Charles Thornton, 1039 W. Second St., was being driven east on Second St., when Evans tried to negotiate a left-hand turn on Mechanic St. The Chevrolet was being driven west on Second St. Both cars were considerably damaged but no one was injured.

FINED ON CHARGE

Frank Coleman, 34, Sugar Creek Twp., was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail by Municipal Judge E. D. Smith Thursday morning for assault and battery. The charge was preferred by G. F. Stussman on whose farm north of Bellbrook Coleman is a tenant and whom he struck in an argument over the use of a team of work horses.

PHILL CORR RELEASED BY DOWNTOWNERS AND SIGNS WITH LANG CHEVROLET TEAM

Phil Corr, star catcher for the Downtown Country Club in the National League, has been given his release from that club and has been signed by the Lang Chevrolet team, leaders of the same league, it is announced.

The public announcement was made after the Softball Commission had approved the transfer, upon examining the written release given Corr by J. W. Purdom, secretary of the Downtown Country Club, and Corr's written request for approval to transfer to the Langs.

Corr will play with the Langs for the first time Friday evening when this team meets the Reeder

Printers of Washington C. H., in the second game of a double header at Cox Field in which the Geyers and Carroll-Binder team will furnish the curtain raiser.

He played baseball at the University of Illinois and was rated as one of the best catchers in the league this year. Jimmy McCurran has been handling the backstopping for the Downtowners in the absence of Corr on several occasions and will probably continue in that position. The Langs have been using Lew McCoy behind the bat, and John Gibney and even Joe Smittle have had turns at the catching end of Lang batteries.

CITY COMMISSION TO CONSIDER QUESTION OF FILLING VACANCY

Possibility of the election of a city commissioner to fill the unexpired term of the late E. B. Light-hiser at the regular meeting of commission Thursday night was believed vague today, although it was admitted that the question would be discussed.

Commissioner Harry M. Fisher was expected to arrive home Thursday from Wolf Lake Park, Mich., where he has been spending two weeks, shortening his trip in order to be present at the commission session.

4-H CLUB NEWS

"UPSTREAMERS' MEET"
The eighth and last meeting of the "Upstreamers" of the City Club was held at the home of the leader, E. D. Haines, this week. Games were played, followed by a business meeting. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. A special meeting of the club will be held Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Roy Linton.

"FUTURE FARMERS' MEET"
The "Future Farmers' 4-H Club met at Shawnee Park, Friday, July 18. Harper Bickett gave a talk on demonstrations to the members. The regular meeting of the club followed Mr. Bickett's talk and Leonard Bootes gave a talk on potatoes and the district camp. The next meeting will be held at Shawnee Park, August 1. All members are urged to attend and bring their record books.

SEWING CLUB HAS MEETING
The "Needle-Art" 4-H Club met at the home of the leader, Mrs. Cora Bootes Tuesday afternoon. The members present answered roll call by naming their favorite flower. An individual demonstration was given by Catherine Shant. It was planned to hold a picnic Friday, July 25 at Forest Park. Dayton members are urged to bring well-filled picnic baskets and families of members are also invited to attend. All those planning to attend are asked to meet in front of Dunkel's Grocery, W. Main St., Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday afternoon, July 29, at the leader's home. All sewing and record books must be completed at this time.

BOMB WRECKS APARTMENTS

CHICAGO, July 24.—Search for a man and woman was begun by police today following a bomb explosion last night which shattered the first floor of a sixty-foot apartment building in Rogers Park. The bomb was placed in the doorway of the cleaning establishment of I. Nemzer and the explosion wrecked the shop. Residents of the apartments above fled to the streets bewildered.

Lydie Norris, an eyewitness, said she was walking toward the building when the unidentified couple halted him and warned him away, saying there was a bomb in the doorway.

AUTOIST KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—A fractured skull and a broken neck which she sustained when the little roadster which she was driving collided with another automobile here, today had caused the death of Miss Thelma Lambrecht, 25.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote: "My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost four weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses. Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast. Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 24.—Most of the industrial stocks and specialties settled down to a lower level of prices in an extremely dull and featureless market today. Only about 700,000 shares changed hands in the forenoon, and speculative operations revolved around a score or more of the best known stocks. Alternate buying and selling waves mostly of professional origin, forced prices backward and forward within a narrow range.

Call money loaned in the outside market today at 1-1/4 per cent in contrast with the 2 per cent rate on the stock exchange. Bulls in the stock market lost considerable of their aggressiveness, and left to their own devices, staked settled to a lower price level. Case Threshing breaking under 190 against yesterday's price at 200. Slightly higher prices were quoted in the forenoon for the food stocks, the oils and a few of the specialties.

National Dairy was the favorite of the food stocks group and sold up about 2 points at 25 1/4. National Cash Register was under pressure and declined about 2 points on announcement of a 10 per cent wage cut. American Can, Westinghouse and other favorites withstood heavy selling in a narrow range of prices. Copper stocks were steady.

DAD'S GIRL

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER 58

It was Craig Donley. She caught her breath sharply and her hand fluttered to her throat, but she instantly recovered her poise and bowed to them. She put her hand into Mrs. Gregory's friendly grasp and held her cheek for an affectionate kiss, bowed to Gregory and turned to Donley.

"I brought Donley, without asking your consent," Mr. Gregory apologized, "because I knew he would be welcome, would rejoice with us over your good fortune, and to make our little party more complete. He has wanted very much to see you, again."

"I am very glad you brought him," she smiled, and Donley bowed above her hand, a new light in his eyes as they appraised her in her new characterization.

"So, our ugly duckling has developed into the swan," he attempted a jest. "Forgive me, Miss Forester, for alluding to the past, but you played your part extremely well, and I am very glad, for your sake, that you have come into your own."

"Dinner is served," Haskins announced. Clara Dee took Donley's proffered arm and led the way to the dining room. Her new role of hostess of the manor added an even greater appeal to her charm, a new dignity to her manner.

that he could advise her was to marry him and forget her problems. He might help her intelligently then.

A week later, Bee, Esther and Janet were once more assembled in Clara Dee's sitting room. As soon as they had come on mass, she had satisfied their persistent volleys of conflicting questions, they sat about her for a moment in awed, silent wonder. Clara Dee marvelled that the return of her wealth had given back to her all that she had lost with it: friends, social position, esteem, flattery, concern. As if they were component parts of a phase of life. And indeed, they were. Her wealth was an "open sesame" to a certain strata of life. When she had lost the charm, her money, she had dropped out of it as if by magic. Her money returned—presto!—there she was again, in the upper strata.

She smiled wryly to herself, but decided to make no issue of their year's neglect. Best to accept it all as it was offered. It was she who had profited by that year, while they—had just idled away another twelve months.

Janet broke the spell. "And now, what about the festivities you promised us a year ago? I'm dying to do—or see something different. Haven't you some corking new ideas from all your queer experiences?"

"Yes, a lot of new ideas, Jan, but not the kind you mean," Clara Dee replied. "You are welcome to help me whenever you wish, but I shan't startle the Grundies as I once expected to do. I don't doubt but that they will be surprised, perhaps even have plenty to say, but I shan't care about that any more than I ever did."

mowing down lives and spreading desolation over one-third of the Italian "Boot," climaxed their horror by isolating thousands of potential victims from contact with the rest of the world.

Hopes are expressed the figure will not mount above the staggering total of 1,778, the worst loss of life since the destruction of Messina in 1908.

But until telephone and telegraph lines are restored and rescue parties reach the isolated communities nestled in isolated reaches of the Apennines, a complete and definite check of the casualties cannot be obtained.

Many guesses are being hazarded as to the toll in these ominous silent districts. Rescue crews, heroically combating the obstacles of buckled bridges, caved-in tunnels and wrecked railway tracks are gradually working their way toward them. Before many hours have passed some word is expected from the silent towns, which include Ripacandide, Avigliano, Filiano, Cancellaro, San Severino and Sarno. Needless to say, hopes are held out the silence has not cloaked new and terrible tragedy.

With the speed and thoroughness characteristic of the Mussolini regime, the work of rescue and of checking the full scope of the catastrophe is proceeding apace. Thousands of survivors are being evacuated from ruined towns, where crumbling houses and collapsing masonry combine with the danger of famine and disease to threaten the lives of those spared by the temblors.

Cracked and weakened homes, which a few hours before were happy hearthstones, are being pulled down by the dozen. At least 10,000, according to official estimates, were either destroyed or rendered unfit for human habitation.

The greatest loss of life, according to the Italian government, occurred in Avellino province, where 1,400 were killed and more than 2,000 were injured, with 2,000 homes in ruins. It is this once thriving province which is now the focal point of rescue efforts.

Authorities, restoring order with the help of troops scattered hastily over the stricken area, pushed rescue and relief work with redoubled vigor today. Hundreds of dead were buried side by side amidst scenes that recalled war days after heavy fighting; the injured were treated by field doctors and were cared for by emergency hospitals; tottering buildings were torn down and others strengthened, and drinking water, food, clothes and tents were supplied to the survivors.

Hasty surveys of the ruined communities disclosed that at Ariano eighty buildings collapsed, with 400 made uninhabitable. The town hospitals escaped damage, however, and immediately were transformed into relief stations. A temporary telegraph station has been set up in the public square.

Villanova, a town of 3,000 population was completely razed by the successive shocks. Four hundred inhabitants were killed and 400 were injured. Grim stories of half crazed, half naked people running and stumbling through its streets crying and shouting among the debris seeking relatives was brought back from the first returning members of the earlier relief expeditions.

Other towns which are known to have suffered severely included Sannicola, where not a house was left standing; Lacedonia, Aquilonia and Montecalvo.

First reports that four Americans had been killed in the vicinity of Naples by the earthquake were discredited by Consul General Louis C. Drefus, Jr., who issued an announcement stating no Americans were killed or injured.

Troops were posted everywhere to prevent looting and disorder; canteens and food supply wagons appeared early in the day, the scores of Red Cross workers endeavored throughout the day to alleviate the suffering of the hundreds of injured. Army airplanes cruised low over the stricken area dropping supplies and photographing the desolated sections in order to secure a basis for concentrated relief action.

All parts of Italy not damaged by the earth convulsions today eagerly offered their aid to the prostrated central south, organizing relief campaign and taking up collections for the sufferers. Pope Plus XI sent messages of condolences and took steps to furnish aid through the church organization.

The epicenter point of the earthquake was at Melfi, forty miles north of Potenza, midway between the two coasts. The extinct volcano Monte Vulture is located there. The other provinces which received the heaviest blow were Benevento, Avellino, Salerno, Foggia and Bari.

Melfi is an important wine and oil trade city. During the thirteenth century it was the capital of the kingdom of Naples. For a time it was feared the shocks had reawakened the ancient volcano, and residents have been warned.

clear of the slopes, where great fissures already have appeared.
Inhabitants in several of the stricken provinces, horrified and dazed by the events of Tuesday night, almost unanimously turned to their community churches for consolation. Crowds demanded in all parts of the earthquake area that statues of the Madonna be placed outside the remains of the churches and hundreds knelt in the littered squares to pray.
A dramatic spectacle was enacted in Naples, where thousands gathered in the public square before the damaged cathedral to murmur prayers while Mass was celebrated inside and the Te Deum sung. When finally the skull of the city's patron saint—Saint Gennaro—was carried outside the cathedral and blessing was extended to the worshippers, religious fervor swept the masses and shouts and chants rose high above the hubbub.
The private apartments of the archbishop of Naples were seriously damaged by the temblors.

ESCAPED PRISONER BACK IN OHIO PEN

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—The gates of Ohio State Penitentiary here closed behind William Huffman, notorious robber who is wanted in many Eastern cities, for the first time since he made his sensational escape over the walls in 1919.
Huffman, in the custody of two prison guards, arrived here today from New York where he was captured two weeks ago on a tip from Columbus detectives.
He was sentenced to the penitentiary in 1918 to serve from five to thirty years for burglary. He escaped a year later and was the object of a nation-wide search for eleven years. In penalty for escaping, Huffman today began serving a seven-to-thirty year term.

LUTHERAN MERGER TO BE CONSUMMATED

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—A merger of 1,900 Lutheran congregations which will include 1,400 pastors and approximately 500,000 baptized church members will be consummated early in August, according to an announcement which had been made today at the state headquarters here.
The three synods which will be merged at a meeting in Toledo, comprise the present Buffalo synod, the Iowa synod, and the joint synod of Ohio.
Membership of the new body will reach as far as New Guinea and in southern British India. Several provinces of Canada, besides thirty-one of the United States, will also be represented in the merged group.

FARMER GORED BY BULL SEVERELY HURT

JACKSON, O., July 24.—Peter Ratliff, 78, local farmer, is in a serious condition today suffering from injuries which he received late yesterday when he was gored by an enraged bull.
Ratliff was riding horseback across a pasture when the bull attacked him. A neighbor, who responded to Ratliff's calls for help shot the animal. The horse was severely gored also.

FEAR FAMILY OF THREE PERISHED IN FLAMES

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., July 24.—Authorities here today were investigating the finding of ashes, supposedly human, which were discovered yesterday in the ruins of a burned house at Mobley, near here. Lot Loudenslager, 34, was the owner of the house. He and his wife, Nora, 45, and the latter's 14-year-old daughter, Annabelle Hupp, have been missing since Saturday night.

A half brother of Loudenslager, Melvin Silder, 23, who resided with the family, is being held here for investigation.

Close neighbors of the missing family reported that they had heard

FUNERAL RITES PLANNED FOR FAMOUS AVIATION PIONEER

HAMMONDSPOUT, N. Y., July 24.—Here, in the picturesque village of Hammondsport, known locally as the "cradle of aviation," Glenn R. Curtiss, world famous aviation pioneer who died unexpectedly in a Buffalo hospital, will be buried at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It was here, at the old race track, on July 4, 1908, that this

HINDENBURG HALTS VISIT FOLLOWING BRIDGE COLLAPSE

Recover 36 Bodies; Fear Many More Lost

BERLIN, July 24.—President Paul von Hindenburg was back at his desk today following his return from the Rhineland sector after he had curtailed his trip through the liberated regions because of the tragedy at Coblenz.

Officially, police there have announced that thirty-six bodies have been recovered, but many more persons were feared dead in the crash of the pontoon bridge over a branch of the Moselle River while a crowd of 100 watched the illumination of Ehrenbreitstein Castle.

A large crowd greeted the weary old soldier-statesman and his party when they arrived at the railroad station. President von Hindenburg gave indication of being deeply moved by the disaster. He cancelled the remainder of his Rhineland program yesterday.

Flags in the city flew at half mast and an investigation into the bridge crash was ordered by the minister of communications.

The victims were buried today. Six-year-old Raymond Lawler of Akron, O., was one of those to lose his life. With his mother, Mrs. Wallace Lawler, he had been visiting his grandparents at Coblenz. His father is an employee of a rubber company at Akron.

YOUNGSTOWN OPENS WAR ON RACKETEERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24.—Working under a threat of federal investigation, police here today launched an intensive drive against racketeering and vice.

An ultimatum was placed before the police department yesterday by Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan, who declared that "unless the police department can cope with the situation here, I am going to ask the assistance of the government."

Mayor Heffernan charged that 80 per cent of the Youngstown police are receiving bribes from the underworld. One detective, the mayor alleged, is "making three times as much as the chief of detectives."

Mayor Heffernan also revealed that since he has been mayor he has turned down opportunities to make $1,000 a week.

"Racketeers have issued a challenge to the city," the mayor said. "They say we are not big enough to stop them."

AMERICA FAVORED IN DAVIS CUP DRAW

PARIS, July 24.—America's Davis cup team was favored in the draw today when Bill Tilden was paired with Jean Borotra, bounding basque, in the opening singles match Friday against France for the most coveted tennis trophy in the world.

MINISTER IS SHOT

Constantine Angelescu, acting minister of the interior of Rumania, is near death from a would-be assassin's bullet at Bucharest, presumably in revenge for the firm measures taken by the government against anti-Jewish rioters. The assailant is believed to be a student Fascist anti-Semite.

The body of Mr. Curtiss was brought here early today from Buffalo where he died suddenly yesterday morning. He had undergone an operation for chronic appendicitis in the Buffalo General Hospital two weeks ago and as recently as Monday his condition was regarded as favorable. But yesterday he unexpectedly relapsed into a coma, and death came quickly.

And so late last night they brought the body back to Hammondsport, his birthplace and summer home. The body was taken to the Curtiss residence.

Reverend G. P. Summerville, rector of St. James Episcopal Church of Hammondsport, will officiate at the funeral services. Burial will be at Pleasant View Cemetery. The honorary pallbearers will include Captain John N. Towners, assistant to Admiral Moffett of the bureau of aeronautics, navy department, Washington. Others will be Sayre Wheeler, Miami; James H. Bright, Miami Springs, Fla.; Captain H. C. Richardson, Cleveland; J. L. Callan, Hammondsport; J. B. Tarbox, Philadelphia; Frank Russell, Garden City, L. I.; W. L. Gilmore, Meadville, Pa.; and E. H. Ballard, Buffalo.

The active pallbearers will be James Hauber, C. L. Waters and Henry Klecker of Hammondsport; Harry Genuis, Auburn, N. Y.; Rumsey Wheeler and K. B. MacDonald, both of Buffalo.

While arrangements for the funeral went forward, telegrams and cablegrams of condolences and sympathy were pouring into Hammondsport from all parts of the globe. Leaders in the world of aviation were unsparing in their praise of the contributions of Mr. Curtiss to the advancement of aviation.

At the same time a movement got under way for the creation of a fitting memorial to the famous aviation pioneer. The Finger Lakes Association of Central New York announced that the forty-four cities and villages of that organization will take steps toward the establishment of a Curtiss commemorative airport near Hammondsport.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 24.—Despite heavy rain showers early today, the red endurance plane piloted by Louis Bletcher and Robert Black was still in the air.

Today the plane had been up more than eighty-four hours but will have to stay up 470 hours more to break the record already established by the Hunter brothers in Chicago on July fourth. The Hunter brothers stayed aloft 553 hours.

LAMBERT ST. LOUIS FIELD, July 24.—"The greater St. Louis" endurance plane piloted by Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brien flew into its fourth day in the air at 7:11 a. m. today.

Statements from several of the scientists have indicated that the infant now known as the son of William Watkins will become officially the son of Charles Bamberger and vice versa. Finger prints, however, refuted the conclusion.

The parents of both babies have promised the health commissioner that they will abide by the decision reached by the experts after exhaustive scientific tests of both babies and parents.

A few days after the births of the two infants the Bambergers found a tag bearing the name Watkins on the baby they took home from the hospital. A similar mark with the name Bamberger was found on the Watkins child. The babies were born in Englewood hospital on the same afternoon.

The scientific test included studies of the hair and skin, comparative skull, nose, ear and face measurements of babies and parents and reflex tests. Seven scientists took part in the tests.

Proceedings today will be in the nature of a court session with the infants, the parents, the scientists, hospital attaches and relatives, in all about forty persons, present to hear the decision.

Nicholas Klein, attorney friend of How, who died at Staunton, Va., Tuesday, said How had drawn up the will here two weeks ago. The estate is estimated to be worth more than $1,000,000.

Klein said that on July 13 he received word to go to the union depot here and there he found How, in shabby clothes and suffering from self starvation. He took the "millionaire hobo" to his home, Klein said, and at How's request drew up his will.

Ingeborg How, the wife was left "whatever she may be entitled to at law." Louis How is the brother and Holger How, the step-son, who were left $5 each.

DETROIT POLICE UNDER FIRE

GIGANTIC SHAKEUP EXPECTED BECAUSE OF BUCKLEY MURDER

Round-Up Gangsters; Federal Probe May Assist Police

DETROIT, July 24.—A gigantic shakeup in the Detroit police department, as the result of the murder of Gerald "Jerry" Buckley, 37, wealthy crusading radio announcer, was seen today in demands of city council that Thomas Wilcox resign as police commissioner.

The combined forces of city and state authorities started the promised roundup of gangsters early today when a miniature, all-night golf course, the known hangout of hoodlums, was raided and sixty men and one woman were arrested. Another raid was made on an east side apartment and three men were arrested and a small arsenal was seized.

Police guards have been assigned to protect Mayor Charles Bowles and have been posted over the plants of the newspapers here as a result of anonymous threats that they "will get the same as Buckley if they meddle."

The popular radio announcer was ruthlessly slain as he sat reading a newspaper in the foyer of the La-Salle Hotel. His was the eleventh gangster slaying in three weeks.

Possibility of a federal probe into the latest slaying loomed as the result of Police Commissioner Wilcox's charges of "radio blackmail."

A possible motive for the latest murder was seen by police today in the revelation of an unnamed gangster that the radio announced had extorted $4,000. Police Commissioner Wilcox said he had received a sworn statement from the racketeer stating that Buckley had induced him to get into the alcohol game and then had demanded money from him.

Police accepted the extortion story as a possible explanation of the slaying. Buckley's associates, headed by the victim's brother, Paul, insisted he was killed because of his espousal of the mayor's recall. Others believed his continued attacks on gangsters offered a motive.

Three men were held by police in connection with the radio commentator's death. One Angelo Lucchese, who was found in an elevator of the hotel shortly after the shooting, was suspected of being the "finger man" for the three assassins. The other two were being held as material witnesses.

The governor, after a conference with Adjutant General John Hersey, of the Michigan National Guard, announced that "it necessary I will call out the state troops and bring them to Detroit to stop these assassinations."

CAPTURE CONVICTS

JOLIET, Ill., July 24.—Two convicts who escaped from Stateville Penitentiary, near here, yesterday, were captured today at Oswego, Ill., following an all night search by state and county police.

The men, Arthur Dill, 31, sentenced to ten years to life for robbery with a gun, and Chester Davis, 25, sentenced from Du Page County in 1927 for burglary, escaped in the automobile of a prison foreman.

MODERN SOLOMAN TO DECIDE

Chicago Health Commissioner Must Rule Of City's Famous Baby Tangle

CHICAGO, July 24.—In the role of a modern Solomon, Dr. Arnold Kegel, health commissioner, today will announce the decision of a corps of prominent scientists enlisted to straighten out the celebrated Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup which has puzzled the parents of both infants.

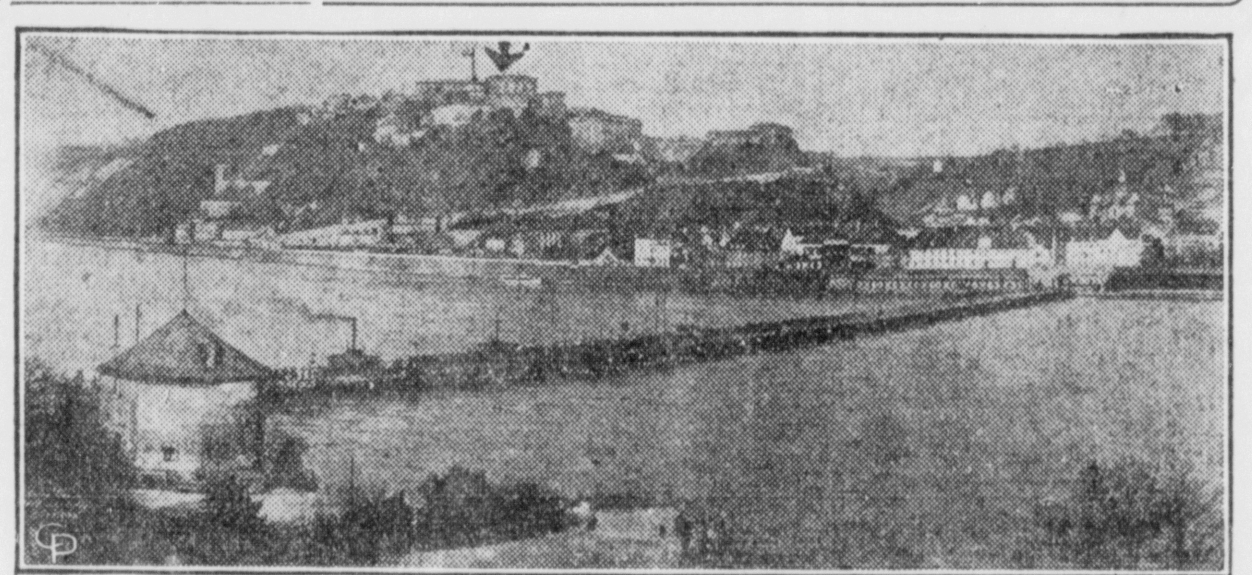

Statements from several of the scientists have indicated that the infant now known as the son of William Watkins will become officially the son of Charles Bamberger and vice versa. Finger prints, however, refuted the conclusion.

The parents of both babies have promised the health commissioner that they will abide by the decision reached by the experts after exhaustive scientific tests of both babies and parents.

A few days after the births of the two infants the Bambergers found a tag bearing the name Watkins on the baby they took home from the hospital. A similar mark with the name Bamberger was found on the Watkins child. The babies were born in Englewood hospital on the same afternoon.

THREE ESCAPE PEN; CAPTURE TWO CONVICTS

Third Still Sought; One Hurt Fleeing Pittsburgh Pen

PITTSBURGH, July 24.—Three convicts made a daring and temporarily successful break for liberty from the Western Penitentiary here today.

Two of the trio were recaptured within two hours of their escape. A police dragnet was spread throughout the tri-state district for the convict still at large.

The men are Ralph Minter, 29, of Johnstown, and Freeland Preston, 29, of North Bessemer, both of whom were recaptured, and R. B. Canfield, 28, also of North Bessemer who escaped.

Minter suffered a broken leg in dropping from a rope used in the attempted escape.

The three men, allowed the usual freedom of trustees stole a rope from the prison store-room yesterday. With this rope, they scaled the rough interior of a vent stack four feet in diameter, early today, and reach the top of the prison wall, sixty feet high.

Here, they dropped the rope into the prison yard and slid down. Minter's broken leg hindered his escape and he was found hiding in a clump of bushes fronting on the Ohio River near the prison.

Preston, the last down, was seen by a guard and halted while Canfield, sprinting desperately, fled along the river bank.

Canfield and Preston were brought to the penitentiary from the Rockview prison farm near Bellefonte, Pa., from which they previously had escaped.

Minter was serving a term of four to eighteen years on a morality charge and Canfield and Preston were each "doing a bit" of six to twelve years for robbery.

MERGER PROXIES STILL UNDER FIRE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 24.—Additional proxies and ballot voted at the famous Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. stockholders' meeting last April 8 in favor of a merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation were expected to be attacked by anti-merger attorneys today in the common pleas court trial here of the injunction suit against the consolidation.

The votes of 128,400 shares of Sheet and Tube stock, held by eighty-nine estates, are under fire of the anti-merger attorneys, who claim that they and other proxies were voted illegally or irregularly at the stockholders meeting when the merger with Bethlehem was approved by a two-thirds majority. The questionable proxies are from executors, administrators, guardians and trustees.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of the late President Roosevelt, will run in the primaries as a candidate for delegate to the Republican state convention on a wet ticket, it was announced today. Mrs. Robinson will be a candidate in the twenty-third congressional district, made up of Herkimer and Oneida Counties and the center of a controversy over prohibition.

RACING FANS ROBBED BY BANDIT SQUAD ARMED WITH MACHINE GUN

ARGO, Ill., July 24.—One hundred and fifty racing fans today mourned the loss of several thousand dollars in cash which was taken from them by machine gun bandits who invaded a hall here where bets were being placed.

The bandit squad escaped in an automobile after a mile-long gun battle in which the suburb's business street was sprayed with bullets.

Entering the hall yesterday in the guise of patrons, five of the bandits took possession of the place. One gunman carried a sub-machine gun. The bettors were lined up against the wall and systematically searched after the proprietor surrendered $2,700.

The bandits fled toward Chicago pursued by highway policemen.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS SHOOTING OF NURSE

SLAIN ANNOUNCER

CLEVELAND, July 24.—While physicians waged a determined fight for her life at City Hospital, an attempt to solve the mysterious shooting of Miss Helen Toth, 20, former student nurse, was being made by police who claim that she has refused to name her assailant.

The bullet wound in the left side of Miss Toth's body, which is believed by police to have been received last Monday, was not discovered until late yesterday. In the meantime, the girl, with the bullet lodged under her spine, is said to have suffered her plight in silence at her home here.

Police today questioned a widower, who is said by the girl's family to have been keeping company with her. A .32-caliber revolver was found in the man's home, according to police.

When questioned, the girl, who is reported to be near death, told several conflicting stories to explain how she was wounded, police said. After several hours of investigation it was finally confirmed that she had been wounded late Monday afternoon, but how and where and why, the girl refused to reveal.

Governor Fred Green of Michigan has ordered the participation of every state trooper in the vicinity of Detroit to aid in the hunt for the slayers of Gerald E. "Jerry" Buckley, above, Detroit radio announcer and member of a wealthy pioneer family, shot to death by three men in the lobby of a Detroit hotel. Buckley had taken an active part in the campaign to recall Mayor Charles Bowles.

AVIATOR SEVERELY HURT AS MONOPLANE STRIKES FOOTHILL

Major Eckerson Is Found In Wreck Trying For Record

BUTTE, Mont., July 24.—The condition today of Major Gilbert H. Eckerson, who suffered serious injuries when his Breese monoplane crashed into a foothill near Silver City from a height of about 12,000 feet Tuesday, was reported as showing little improvement at Murray Hospital here.

Major Eckerson, recognized as one of the crack pilots of the Northwest, sustained a fracture of the skull and severe bruises about the head and body in the crash, which occurred during an attempt to set a one-stop flight record from Portland, Ore., to Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

The injured pilot was found yesterday amid the wreckage of his plane about seven miles from Silver City by Elsie Pogson, 19, who was horseback riding on her father's ranch. She summoned aid and Major Eckerson was brought to Butte by Dr. L. R. Packard and A. B. Sanders, an overseas companion of the injured aviator.

"I didn't realize the country was rolling and dotted with foothills," he said. "I had been fighting dizziness for some time when, suddenly, I began losing altitude rapidly. Before I could pull out we had crashed."

DEATH LIST MOUNTS AS RESCUE WORKERS UNCOVER SHAMBLES

Report 4,262 Injured; 50,000 Not Reported; Homes In Ruins

ROME, July 24.—Beneath the shambles of thousands of crushed homes and buildings, stretching in a hideous mass of destruction and desolation over five provinces of south central Italy, rescue workers bent their energies today to bring some semblance of order out of the chaos left in the wake of a series of earthquake shocks that took a toll of at least 1,778 lives and reduced scores of communities to acres of dust and rubble.

The figure of 1,778 dead, with an injured list of 4,262 injured, was given out by Premier Benito Mussolini in his capacity as minister of the interior this morning. It was compiled on the basis of reports received from the prefects of the provinces affected by the quakes which rocked thousands of square miles from Naples in the north to Catania in the south.

Against this official figure, appalling as it may be, stands the fact that cities, towns and villages numbering an aggregate of 50,000 population have not been heard from since the first violent tremor struck terror to the heart of Italy shortly after midnight yesterday.

Throughout the night, government officials tried vainly to communicate with these places by telephone and telegraph. The quakes

SHOWDOWN APPEARS CERTAIN ON HUSTON RESIGNATION CASE

Few Still Refuse To Be Bluffed By Poker Tactics

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A large portion of the Republican party appeared today to be well bluffed by the poker tactics of national chairman, Claudius H. Huston, but there were strong indications a showdown was imminent.

Administration leaders this morning weren't quite sure even of the whereabouts of the "man-who-is-supposed-to-resign-but-hasn't" they think he is in New York, and to that end J. R. Nutt and James Francis Burke, treasurer and general counsel, respectively, of the Republican national committee, are in the metropolis to ferret him out and ascertain the state of his mind.

The possibility that President Hoover would take matters in his own hands and publicly ask for Huston's resignation was stronger than ever.

More than anything else, the G. O. P. fears an open fight within its own ranks, especially in view of the important forthcoming elections. Intra party squabbles Republicans feel, are something to be left to the Democrats, and they have about reached the conclusion Huston is seeking to head them in to one. They are looking to the White House to avert a public rift and the opinion seemed to be growing it would take the president's personal touch to do it.

BRITISH COMMONS CONSIDERS TREATY

LONDON, July 24.—The London naval treaty, which was recently ratified by the United States Senate, today awaits its third reading and final action by the house of commons.

The bill to put the pact into legislative form passed its second reading yesterday without difficulty. Although it is rather unusual for treaties to be embodied in legislative bills, this procedure was followed because the treaty while binding upon the house of commons, could not in default of legislation be enforced as against private individuals.

CURED OF RICHES

DAYTON, O., July 24.—A gypsy woman here today had turned the rejected weakness of her sex, talkativeness, to such good advantage that she talked Marvin Rohr into drawing his entire life savings of $600 out of the bank and turning it over to her.

The woman, known as Mrs. Stanley, tells fortunes. She told Rohr that if he would permit her to hold all his money, he would be ultimately be cured of tuberculosis. He did this but failed to note any improvement in his condition. When he sought to consult his "benefactor," she had disappeared.

Gotham Leads in Rush To Matrimonial Bliss

Deputy Clerk in Ten Years Ties Knot for 125,000 Couples.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Marriage is a joy to some and a burden to others, but to J. J. McCormick, matrimony is merely the biggest part of a day's work.

During the ten years, Mr. McCormick has been deputy clerk of the New York City Marriage License Bureau, he has draped the legendary "ball and chain" over 250,000 men and women.

Brides and grooms of all creeds, colors, religions, ages and temperaments have been united by this emotional, fat man who presides over the famous "nuptial altar" in the Municipal Building.

Considering the serious nature usual permanence of these contracts, the binding process is completed at an amazing rate of speed.

June of course is the most favored month. One hot Saturday no less than 112 couples were wed by the fast-working Mr. McCormick. The record for marriage licenses issued in a single day is 216.

Naturally the marriage clerk under such conditions has no time to impart fatherly advice or caution the participants against quarreling over who will dry the dinner dishes. Clerk McCormick works so fast that the knot is tied before the dazed couple realize it.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre. Adv.

"I don't scrub" says Mrs. King

YOU'LL be surprised to know I haven't used a washboard in years. Why should I—when Rinso soaks clothes whiter. And saves them from getting that scrubbed-out look.

"On washday, I let Rinso's creamy suds do all the work. Rinso is all I ever use—no other soap—no softener. My wash comes so white, I don't even boil. Rinso is wonderful!"

Safe, economical suds

You can trust your finest cottons and linens to Rinso. The makers of 38 washing machines recommend it.

Even in hardest water, Rinso's suds are thick, creamy, lasting. And it's all you need in tub or washer. A real thrift-soap; gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as the lightweight, puffed-up kinds.

Great for dishes, too—for floors, walls, bath-tubs, linoleum—and all cleaning. Get the BIG package.

a separate floor from the "altar." Here one enters and waits his or her turn with other couples.

After the necessary data has been filled in the blushing pair is led upstairs. Here there are more couples waiting. When your turn comes, you are ushered into a small room decorated by two sickly looking palms.

Here the impassive Mr. McCormick says the necessary words. On very busy days he talks faster than Floyd Gibbons. Before the groom can answer the question of "whether he takes this woman for his lawful wedded wife?" the official is querying the bride on her willingness to be married then and there.

McCormick asks for the ring, has it slipped on the lady's finger, the groom is ordered to "kiss the bride," and the ritual has been solemnized.

Newlyweds can pay McCormick something for his trouble or not, just as they choose. Most of them merely mumble "thanks" and stumble out into the sunshine to ponder over the rapidity with which they were wed "until death do ye part."

KENNETH KERR BUYS WILMINGTON PAPER

W. Kenneth Kerr, Wilmington, who is well known in Xenia, recently took over the ownership of the Clinton County Democrat from the Wilmington Publishing Co., to which he sold the paper in 1924.

Mr. Kerr will continue his traveling position with a Portsmouth manufacturing concern. It is announced, and employed William Hansford as manager of the paper. In the deal for re-purchase of the paper, Mr. Kerr disposed of his interest in the Wilmington Publishing Co., and retired as its president, a position he has held since the organization of the company eight years ago. The Wilmington Publishing Co. will in the future devote all its attention to the job printing business.

THE PRIMARY

To Editor of Xenia Gazette: Dear Sir:

Just some points in view of the Primary, August 12th.

A boy said to the clerk, "I want a bottle of ink to make me think." Any may this printers ink make you think.

We would like to assume that all are loyal, law abiding citizens, loving righteousness. But we are forced to presume there are some, more or less, who prefer lawlessness, corruption and graft and personal gain at public expense. Right here is a large part of the problem on election day.

Politics are honorable. It is the dishonorable conduct of unprincipled people that corrupts. Therefore all honorable citizens should exercise their right to vote, that sin may be kept out of office or at least handicapped as much as possible and society kept pure by God fearing men in office.

Prove your loyal citizenship by voting. Those who love corruption will vote. That is what corrupts politics.

The primary to a large degree is more important than the election in November. The one nominated is most sure to be elected.

Study the candidates, their habits, associates and ability. This is not saying that two or more good candidates cannot run for the same office. If so then take your choice. It is not such a matter of a candidate but will he exercise judgment if elected and enforce the law and protect property and decency. Or will he be our master instead of servant and use the office for personal profit at public expense. Will he fill the office or use the office to fill himself? For which candidate are the lawless and gamblers, and bootleggers? And for which are the law loving and law abiding citizens? What kind of a public servant do the good mothers want?

Do not be deceived by some whisperings and idle tales, especially at the last moment. Often the right man falls of election because such tales create doubts in the minds of good people. You can tell by the appearance and wag of a tail (tale), the nature of the animal to which it belongs. The point with lawless is to elect those who will change the law so they can legally proceed with evil or who will wink at the violation of law.

A good loyal American citizen wants a man for office who will not wink at crime or close both eyes while crime drives on, and who will not be bribed or sidetracked, but on the other hand who has a high regard for his oath of office and will be a righteous servant of the people.

GRAHAM-PANCAKE NUPRIALS PERFORMED AT RECTORY

In a quiet ceremony performed at the rectory of St. Brigid Church, W. Second St., Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, Miss Lou Ellen Pancake, Dayton, became the bride of Mr. James Graham, this city. The single ring service was performed by the Rev. David Powers, Miss Helen Brightenstine, Dayton, and Mr. Joseph Hendrickson, formerly of Xenia, were the couple's attendants at the service. The bride wore a becoming frock of shell pink georgette, with harmonizing accessories. She carried a corsage of white rose buds, lilies of the valley and baby's breath. Miss Brightenstine's gown was of poudre blue georgette, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink rose buds and delphinium. Immediately following the ceremony the two couples motored to Dayton where a reception was held at the bride's home, 6 McClure St. About seventy-five guests were present for the reception. A refreshment course was served and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Graham left for New York and Atlantic City to be gone two weeks. Upon their return they will reside in Dayton at 6 McClure St.

Mrs. Graham has been employed as a supervisor of telephones for the Bell Telephone Co., Dayton. Mr. Graham is the son of Mrs. Mary Graham, Cincinnati Ave., and is employed as baggage agent at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot in this city.

Mary Louise Ledbetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlin G. Ledbetter, W. Third St., is recovering from an operation performed at the office of a local physician Thursday morning for the removal of her tonsils and adenoids.

Mrs. Julia Whittington, N. Detroit St., underwent an operation at McClellan Hospital Wednesday morning.

Miss Melba Taylor, Xenia, is a guest this week of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Taylor, Dayton.

Miss Irma Van Horn, S. Detroit St., is visiting with relatives in Port Wayne, Ind.

Miss Josephine Wolf, N. King St., has as her guest, Miss Helen Snouffer, Frederick, Md. Miss Snouffer arrived Wednesday and will spend several days here.

Mrs. Martha Peterson, Columbus, is the guest this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Franklin, Bowersville.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE REACHES JURY AS ARGUMENTS END

Value of the shattered affections of Miss Emma Johnson, plaintiff in a $25,000 heart balm suit against Howard Faulkner, prominent young farmer, was placed in the hands of the jury to decide about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Judge R. L. Gowdy rendered his charge to the jury at the close of the summing up by counsel which occupied two hours and one half, an hour and fifteen minutes for argument being allowed to each side. Attorney Irvin G. Delscamp opened the argument for the plaintiff shortly before 11 o'clock and he was followed by J. C. Marshall of the law firm of Marshall and Marshall, who presented the case of the defendant. He concluded before the noon adjournment and J. T. Marshall resumed the summing up for the defendant at the conclusion of the luncheon recess. Attorney J. A. Finney was expected to close for the plaintiff.

The defendant, who occupied the witness stand more than an hour Wednesday afternoon, was back on the stand for conclusion of his cross examination, Thursday morning.

Declaring that his only reason for breaking his engagement with Miss Johnson was owing to the attitude she had displayed toward farm life, Faulkner said that until the time the suit was filed he carred for, admired and honored her, and stood ready to marry her in case this fact which he believed would have been an obstacle to their happiness, might have been removed.

The defendant had previously testified regarding his financial condition. His property he said consisted of an interest in stock and chattels on his father's farm. C. Dodds testified for the defendant.

which his father held a $2,000 note. The trial fans still crowded the court room Thursday, a number of women eating their lunches there in order to obtain advantageous seats to hear the proceedings. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Faulkner the defendant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Long, his uncle and aunt, Mrs. George Pillsbury and Mrs. J. C. Dodds testified for the defendant.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

INTELLIGENT PRAYER—When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. Be not therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:7, 8.

WHAT THEY LEARNED

The reason for the progressive disappearance of studied indifference toward the navy treaty by about a third of the members of the senate is instructive. When the regular session ended, there seems to have been a rather prevalent impression in the upper house that the country was not greatly interested in the result of the London conference, and that it would be safe enough to play horse with the treaty and make President Hoover as much trouble as possible. So quite a number of the senators departed for their homes, with the apparent intention of staying there and letting their colleagues kill or ratify or postpone action on the compact as they pleased.

But once back among the plain people, the high and mighty senators learned to their amazement that they had been all wrong about their constituents. The public was interested in the treaty and interested deeply. People talked about the need of measures to save the money of the country and about the necessity for furthering peace by ratification of the naval agreement. They began to ask the loafing senators what they were doing around the town anyhow with important public business waiting for them in the national capital. It is rumored that some of the runaways were rather glad to get on trains starting for Washington. At this writing they are still arriving in that city and the danger that there will be a lack of a quorum which will prevent a ratification vote seems to be distinctly a thing of the past.

Nor does there appear to be very much danger that the vote will fail to be confirmative—not unless the senate suddenly succumbs to an epidemic of acute mania. Because the manifest feeling of the country at large is pretty well represented in the letter which Cyrenus Cole, an Iowa Republican, sent to Senator Moses the other day, and which contained these passages:

"Vote on the treaty and go home. * * * The conscience of the country is back of the treaty that quibblers are still seeking to emasculate. That same conscience was shocked by four days of debate on a resolution to force the President to violate all the traditions of international intercourse. Even in Russia they would hardly propose such diplomatic indecency. * * * If the senate is going to bawl through another summer, the country will feel disposed to shut up shop. It has already been talked into all the distress it can stand. In the name not of the party, but of patriotism, vote, quit and go home and give the country a chance to recuperate."

It is this sort of talk, general enough and emphatic enough to make the silly contingent in the senate realize that the nation really has had enough, which is bringing the body to time. And the effect the protests from the country are having on it should give the nation some valuable enlightenment regarding the proper way to handle the upper house hereafter.

"Those distant suns have their planets going around them," says a columnist. Well, well, and where did the gentleman get this exact information ahead of all the hard working regular astronomers?

We notice that a list of the contents of the June bride's linen chest mentions a dozen bath towels, two dozen linen hand towels, a dozen guest towels, and so on. But it says nothing of the Pullman and hotel towels which will be the groom's contribution.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

ELIMINATING MURDER

Last year London had 21 murders. Seven of the slayers committed suicide; six were hanged and four were sentenced to prison. That leaves only four of yet cleared up. In Chicago in a year there were 421 murders and four executions. In New York there were 428 killings and six executions. England has practically wiped out murder by strict enforcement of the law.

Judge Kavanaugh, well-known Chicago jurist, blames public sentiment for difference between conditions here and abroad. He says the most popular judges in America are the most lenient. Probably the largest single reason for the difference is the delay in American court procedure compared to the fast-working English courts.

CRIME NEWS

Some, not thinking carefully, say the amount of crime news in the papers has some effect on the amount of crime. In the first place the amount of crime news, in comparison with other classifications of news, is not large. And in the second place, England's own experience shows that the amount of crime news has no bearing on the number of offenses. English papers give much more space to crime than do American papers. English papers print crime news in greater detail. And yet, murder is almost passing out in London.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Charles Wilson Peale, former Philadelphian who became a great artist, was so anxious to have his children become artists that he gave them great names. Fortunately he had many children and was able to use many notable names. He had sons whom he called Raphael, Rembrandt, Titian and Rubens. Altogether he had eleven. Two of his sons, Rembrandt and Raphael, really made good reputations as artists.

It is an interesting story, but doesn't furnish much of a lesson for other fathers. It won't make much difference what you call your son. It won't even make much difference what you tell him. The one thing a father can do for his son is to set him a living example. That's all that will count much.

FLATS AND BATHS

Henry Ford, whose investigators are studying living costs in European cities, may upset ideas across the water. Proposing to pay workmen in his European factories the equivalent of $7 a day in his American plants, he finds workmen over there do not live as they do here. Four or five rooms and a bath are for the European middle class. European working people usually live in a "home" of two rooms. There is uneasiness lest workmen get the idea they can live in better conditions. That does not make us unhappy in America. There is nothing finer in all the United States to show foreign visitors than the homes and gardens of men who work in shops and factories. And why shouldn't they have homes and gardens? Nothing so surely distributes prosperity among us all as the system of high wages. European manufacturers have some things to learn about labor and homes for laboring men. If Henry Ford can teach them he will have done a service for mankind.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

In what year did woman's suffrage go into effect, and what president signed the bill? The nineteenth amendment went into effect in 1920, after ratification by the states. Wilson was president at this time, but had nothing to do with the measure, since it was placed before the legislatures of the states in the form of a congressional resolution.

Signs Of Oil

Is a salty and oily flavor in well water a sign of the presence of oil or gas?

Sometimes. Water can be contaminated by such flavors so easily that they are unreliable as signs of oil or gas. If they persist over a long period, they may indicate oil and gas. In such event a geologist should be consulted.

Selling Short

How is "selling short" accomplished on the stock market? Since stock must change hands in every transaction to complete it, the broker borrows the amount of stock sold by the customer to deliver to the buyer. The short seller simply agrees to replace the borrowed stock, whatever the price he has to pay to obtain it. If the stock rises, he must replace it at a loss. If it decreases in value, he replaces it at a profit.

America's Explorers

What country is most noted for its explorers?

The United States probably is the home-land of the largest number of noted explorers who include Rear Admiral Byrd, Roy Chapman Andrews, Prof. James H. Breasted and William Beebe.

Who's Who In Hollywood

Where can I obtain a complete list of movie stars? "Who's Who In Hollywood," a pamphlet prepared by Central Press, lists the stars and the essential facts about them. This may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin or stamps, to Central Press, Washington Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.

Rule or Ruler

I have a bar 12 inches long, graduated at one-eighth inch intervals. Is it a ruler or a ruler?

It is a ruler but becomes a ruler when it is used as a guide in drawing lines.

Edgar Guest

Is Edgar A. Guest still living? Where was he born? Yes. He was born in Birmingham, England.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who In Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington," and Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government.")

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—I was reading a piece recently by Sammy Goldwyn, the movie magnate. It was called "Why I Prefer Blondes," and it had pictures of Vilma Banky, Lily Damita (the prettiest woman in the world) and Evelyn Laye.

Sammy may have written it, and then again he may not. After reading it I recalled a statement he made to a newspaper man some years ago. He was discussing his aims, his ambitions, his "art"—and he said:

"You know the way I feel—I'd rather produce a good play than—well, than eat a good meal!"

"QUEER DUCK"

An old insurance clerk cashed in the other day, leaving to the Museum of Art a collection of ancient Chinese fabrics, second in importance only to that in the Imperial Palace Museum in Peking. The place he called "home" was the parlor floor of a shabby brownstone house in The Bronx. During his tenure there nobody gave him a tumble. He was known merely as a "queer duck." Then he died, leaving his art treasures, and now his neighbors are running round thinking up "nice things" about him.

Their excuse for neglecting him during his life is, I suppose, that they saw nothing to distinguish him from the crowd. And it may be true. What, after all, is there to distinguish any of us, save a mole or two (which we carefully conceal), and the eccentric way we leave of denting the soft hat?

PESSIMISM PLUS!

The Duchess wants to know if The Boys won't please lay off, at least till the cool weather sets in. Theodore Dreiser says the country is going to the devil. Clarence Darrow has just crashed page three with a blast against religion. Menckens is mad as a wild bird who says women are cows. Cal Coolidge swears the country's prosperous. The workman says "tain't so. Eddie Guest wants men to kiss their wives oftener and old Mr. Cole is unimpaired his vocabulary on the subject of trout. Jim Watson, the "fahmna's friend," is yipping about the naval pact and they're riveting on a new building down the street. It ain't the heat—it's the stupidity.

HORATIO ALGER UP-TO-DATE!

DAWES' OUTSPOKENNESS IS GIVEN AS CAUSE FOR HOOVER'S SECRECY IN LONDON NAVAL TREATY BATTLE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—If there is any field of human endeavor, more than all the others put together, in which smart-Aleckism is out of place, it is the field of diplomacy. This being the case, one can but marvel at the selection of Charles G. Dawes for the post of United States ambassador to London, the most important foreign capital to which this country sends a diplomatic representative. Sent there he was, however.

Hence most of the subsequent turmoil over the Anglo-Japanese American naval treaty. It would have been fought anyway, doubtless. Nevertheless, the state department's inability to publish all the correspondence relating to it furnished its opponents with the bulk of their ammunition. And the part that Secretary Stimson could not disclose was Ambassador Dawes' part—as too smart-Alecky.

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS, the Chicagoan had hardly anything to do with the naval negotiations after the conference actually had started; he did have a good deal to do with the preliminary conversations.

That is, he talked with Premier MacDonald and other high English officials; likewise, it is understood, with the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors and various of their assistants in the British capital—preparing the ground for the more formal discussions to follow.

Concerning all these chats he reported voluminously to Washington. That in doing so he employed many expressions even stronger than "Helen Maria" (so it's said) perhaps would not have mattered so much if he had spoken flatteringly of the assorted functionaries with whom he came in contact. Unluckily he was far from favorably impressed by some of them and it appears that he referred to what he deemed their shortcomings in extraordinary candor.

Incidentally he indulged in a few pungencies relative to certain senators, but that was of less consequence; they were anti-administration senators anyhow.

THIS, AT ALL EVENTS, was the sort of literature which Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California and his fellow critics of the naval agreement insisted on having submitted to senate, with the rest of the documentary evidence, to guide the solons in their deliberations concerning ratification.

Why the state department objected is no deep mystery.

For one thing, if the Dawes reports are as spicy as rumored, making them public unquestionably would end the ambassador's career at King George's court and quite likely render him ineligible in Paris, Rome and Tokyo also.

POSSIBLY the administration could have endured Ambassador Dawes' embarrassment with considerable equanimity, had that been the only danger.

Political considerations, rather than admiration of the ex-vice president for himself alone, generally are supposed to have influenced "Mr. Hoover in his choice of the distinguished Chicagoan for his present position; nor is it assumed that the latter improved his standstill at the White House by inadvertently providing the navy treaty's foes with a liberal supply of high explosives to aid them in their fight against it.

However, the treaty's fate was involved, as well as Ambassador Dawes' sensibilities.

TRUE ENOUGH it may be, as asserted by administration spokesmen, that the ambassador's comments had nothing to do with the actual results of the treaty. But, if it has been evident all along that they were not of a nature to encourage its ratification.

All available information indicates that, from an American standpoint, they are funny; from the other treaty powers' standpoint, amusing.

Louder is poison to diplomacy. The state department instantly realized the peril of letting any advantage to the anti-treaty-lites that would enable the stars to start Americans—chuckling. And even supposing that the pact survived the toxic effects of a good laugh here in the U. S., what about the consequences of Ambassador Dawes' outspokenness (were it revealed in London and Tokyo)?

Angered by his contemptuous estimate of their motabilities, would not the offended British and Japanese be a bit certain to balk at ratification?

THUS THE ambassador had to be protected—if not on his own account, then on account of the treaty. Of President Hoover, of Secretaries of State and the Navy, Stimson and Adams, of Dwight W. Morrow, of Senators Reed and Joe Robinson and all the rest of the American negotiators.

Their credit had to be saved, and the only way that could be done was by saving Ambassador Dawes'. Otherwise maybe it's a fair guess that he'd have been tossed to the senate lions without a second's compunction.

They say the ambassador is somewhat subdued—temporarily. On his last trip home I'm told he uttered scarcely a word that could have shocked a Sunday school superintendent.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BREAKFAST

Chilled Honeydew and Cantaloupe Balls (Served with Cracked Ice) Fried Blue Perch Saratoga Chips (Potatoes) Blueberry Muffins

Lemon Jelly Butter Sliced Fresh Peaches Cream Sugar Cookies Coffee

DINNER

Iced Watermelon Cubes Tomato Stuffed and Veal, Pork Celery on Lettuce Grilled Potatoes Creamed Asparagus Hard Rolls Brown Bread Orange Marmalade Cream Wafers Coffee

This menu is planned for Sunday or a holiday where only two formal meals are planned. A late lunch of bread and milk or something equally simple, may be served before going to bed, if desired. The breakfast may be served after before-breakfast exercise such as a hike, swimming or tennis.

Today's Recipes

Blueberry Muffins—One cup washed blueberries, one fourth cup shortening (butter preferred), one-third cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, five teaspoons baking powder, one egg, two and one-half cups flour, one cup milk. Cream the shortening and gradually add the sugar, beating until thoroughly creamed. Sift in one-fourth cup of flour and mix thoroughly. Add egg well beaten. Beat well. Spread the well-drained berries on a clean cloth and sift the remaining flour with the salt, cinnamon and baking powder; add alternately with the milk to the first mixture, stirring only enough to blend well. Add the well-floured berries and mix lightly. Turn into well-oiled and floured muffin pans and bake in a moderate oven about 25 minutes. (The temperature of the oven should be about 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit.)

Drink Lemon or Tomato Juice

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Answers to Mothers
"God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers."
—Jewish Proverb.

"I am anxious to begin tomato juice for my month-old baby (it is impossible to get oranges.) In using canned tomato juice, how can I preserve its freshness? Does lemon juice have the same effect, and if so, how is it given?"

Yes, lemon juice, also tomato, cabbage and turnip juice are just as good as the orange juice for the anti-scurvy vitamin, C. You can keep them fresh just as you do any other food—by placing them into a properly cooled ice box, but don't try to keep them too long. Remember that these foods are just as good for the rest of the family as they are for the baby, so have them frequently.

The way to obtain cabbage or turnip juice is to grate the vegetable (collect the juice as it grates), then place it in a clean piece of cloth and squeeze it (wash hands thoroughly first). Of course, if you have a press of some sort, so much the better.

The lemon juice being so much tartar than orange juice will have to be somewhat diluted and perhaps a little sugar added. The same amounts of any of the juices would be used. Begin about the fourth week with a very small amount—about one-half teaspoonful diluted first, and gradually increase until one to three ounces are taken (two to six tablespoons).

We have a list of modern books on the subject of child feeding and general care. See column rules for obtaining this.

"My girl of 5 years gives me so much trouble with her food; she won't eat. I've tried and tried but I'm giving up hope of ever making her eat. She gets cod liver oil and I did give her a tonic but without success. She drinks three glasses of milk daily. She looks quite weak. Please send me your list of books on child feeding and care. In my last letter, I told you I weighed 210 lb. 6 in. tall.

MRS. U. "Maybe your little girl needs the appetite stimulating vitamin B. Mrs. U. First, I must ask whether you took her to a clinic or baby specialist to have her checked up to see that there is no organic reason for her thinness? If there isn't, try giving her some vitavase (can be purchased in the drug-stores), which is very high in vitamin B, on her cereals. She should rest more, but have her out in the air as much as possible. Let me know if you succeed, please."

You need the reducing instructions, Mrs. U., if you weigh 210 and are only 6 ft. 6 in. tall. See column rules for obtaining the Petersizing pamphlet and the list of books on general care and feeding of children.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a "fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, one cent in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, The Urinary System Address Dr. Peters Bureau, in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

If Engaged Play Fair, Is Counsel

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

IF TWO PEOPLE are engaged to be married, just how loyal should they be to one another—I mean in their actions? For instance, if they do not live in the same town, should either go out with others, with or without the other's consent?

I once knew a beautiful girl who was engaged to a man in a distant city. She wore his ring, but aside from that token of her betrothal she did not think it necessary to go. She was extremely popular, and men meeting her and hearing nothing of her engagement and not taking the ring seriously, would fall in love and propose, and they would be very indignant indeed when they found out she was not free to entertain their proposals. One estimable young man, after he had offered her his heart and hand, was so angry that he would cross the street if he saw her coming to avoid speaking to her.

A girl writes and asks me what she should do in a somewhat similar situation.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am coming to you to answer a perplexing question. I am 18 years old and very much in love. I have never told a boy I loved him except the boy I go with now, whom I truly love and whom I know loves me. We are planning to get married as soon as he saves some money. He works every other week on a night shift, and most every body knows we will get married some day."

"When he works nights I go out with other boys who know about our affair and like me. My friend never says a word about me going with other boys, as he wants me to be happy and have a good time. When I've been with someone (I always tell him whom I have been with) I can tell by the expression on his face that it hurts him very much. Here is the question I want you to answer:

"Should I go with other boys while he is working? Should I go with others and, after several dates with them, kiss them? My boy friend never has dates. He is 21. Do you think if he has rivals he will love me more and fight for me? Just your friend in need of advice.

"BABE." How would you feel, Babe, if, say, you went away from town on a visit, and your boy friend looked other girls out? Not only that, but, after dating them a few times, he kissed them? Would you love him more if you had to fight other girls to keep him? Answer these questions honestly and you'll have your answer. I should think the hurt look on your boy friend's face when you tell him about your other dates would be enough of an answer, without any advice from me. I think your kisses belong to the man you are to marry, don't you, honestly now?

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been going with a girl about two years and I think the world of her and she seems to love me. We have been thinking of getting married, but it has been about six months since I have seen her, because her father won't allow me to go with her. Any advice you may render will be appreciated.

BUDDY Pretty tough to try to plan a wedding under those circumstances, isn't it, Buddy? What's the matter with her father, or rather, what is the matter with you, that her father doesn't like you? Anything you can do about that? Do you drink? Are you a steady worker? You have been true to her for a long time considering you haven't been allowed to see her. Is she too young to marry, possibly? Or are you too young. If so all you can do is to wait until she grows up and then, if you are both of the same mind, and can't coax father to relent, well, maybe you can marry anyhow.

Exercising Will Right Flat Feet

By GLADYS GLAD

Every aspect of a woman's attractiveness is the result of faithful attention of every detail of her health and grooming. It is impossible to neglect either health or grooming and yet attain perfection. Women often seek to cover up their neglect of health by their perfection in grooming. Many conditions of ill health, however, absolutely refuse to be concealed.

This is especially true of flat feet. Smart new shoes may obscure, for a few days, the fact that you have flat feet, but in a short time the shoe will conform to the shape of the foot and your secret will be obvious.

Flat feet are as painful as they are unsightly. Simple exercises will correct fallen arches. Rise slowly on the toes while you count ten, then lower the heels to the same count. Stand with the heels on a book or slight elevation and lift the toes to a level with the heels. Pick up small articles with the toes. All of these are excellent corrective exercises.

Correctly administered massage of the arches will also do wonders. Grasp the foot in both hands, the fingers of both hands pressed tightly against the ball of the foot. This places the thumbs close together above the arches. Keeping the fingers in position, open the space between the thumbs, pressing against the arch as the thumbs move toward the sides of the foot. Don't be too strenuous with this massage, but use enough pressure so that the circulation through the foot is increased. This is an excellent arch strengthener.

In caring for the feet, the less oil you use on them the better. Far superior to the oil are the foot baths in warm water. The salty foot bath is especially excellent for tired feet. Such baths will make the feet much less liable to corns and calluses, and will immeasurably improve their condition of health.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Warts H. H. H. and Jean S.: Warts are caused by cutaneous infections. It is dangerous to try to remove them yourself. See a skin specialist about them.

Shampoo Miss A. R. and Billie: Lemon juice and dilute peroxide are excellent skin whiteners. My method of shampooing light hair to help prevent its darkening is too long to print in this limited space. However, it is fully explained in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Dolores Blanton: I have never heard of a case in which a solution of glycerine and rose water has caused the growth of hair on the face.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

PRIZES AWARDED IN VEGETABLE GARDEN CONTEST THIS WEEK

First prize in the county vegetable garden contest conducted under the auspices of the Greene County Farm Bureau, was won by Mrs. Helen Dodds, Dayton Pike, according to announcement being made by the committee in charge.

The second award was made to Mrs. Thomas H. Paulkner, Caesar Creek Twp. Grover King of the Richland neighborhood and E. J. Kelsey, Spring Valley, were third and fourth award winners.

Other prizes were awarded to M. H. Rogers, Jamestown; L. M. Huston, Selma; C. F. McDaniel, Upper Bellbrook Pike; Mrs. E. E. Flaney, Cedarville; Mrs. Mary Tobias, Cedarville; Miss Margaret Thomas, Spring Valley; the Rev. Mr. Knoop, Spring Valley.

The gardens, all of which had suffered considerably from effects of drought and extreme heat, were judged by Dr. J. Lanashire of Ohio State University. The committee was pleased with the result, and with the interest shown by the twenty-three participants. It was announced, and the hope was expressed that the contest would serve to stimulate general interest in efficient gardening next year.

The prizes were donated by merchants, as follows: Garden plow, Cedarville Farmers' Grain Co.; Keen Cutter rake, Greene County Hardware Co.; 125 pound bag fertilizer, Greene County Farm Bureau; garden weeder, Huston Mickett Hardware Co., Xenia; hoe, Famous Cheap Store, Xenia; spade, Deaton Hardware Store, Yellow Springs; fertilizer, Alpha Seed and Grain Co.; fertilizer, Miami Fertilizer Co., Yellow Springs; hoe, Cameron and Sams Implement Co., Jamestown; rake, John Ferguson Hardware Store, Jamestown; spade, Wickersham Hardware Store, Jamestown; rake, Spring Valley Hardware Co.

The committee in charge of the contest consisted of: Mrs. David Bradfute; Mrs. Ernest Bradford and Mrs. Elton Haines.

CITY HALL OFFICES CLOSED FOR RITES

Municipal offices were closed Wednesday afternoon while city employees attended funeral services for City Commissioner Edward E. Lighthiser which were conducted at the First Reformed Church.

The Rev. W. W. Foust, pastor of the church was in charge of the services, which were largely attended. Burial was made in the cemetery at Spring Valley. Fellow lodgers of Mr. Lighthiser were pallbearers.

LADY, 72, TELLS WHAT KONJOLA DID FOR HER!

Says She Was "About At The End Of My String"—Read Her Grateful Words.

Strange, but true, Konjola is what the very peak of its power when pitted against the stubborn ill of the aged. Take as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mrs. Helen Baechle, 72, 1012 Purcell St., Cincinnati, who declares:

"At my age, 72—I had no idea that any medicine could help me. I was weak, run down and tired; work was drudgery. I was bilious, dizzy and my back ached. I was just about at the end of my string. I wondered if Konjola would help me, and I surely was not long in finding out. I am still taking Konjola, but my digestion has been restored; my body freed from poisons and impurities and I am enjoying my work."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to cleanse and stimulate the ailing organs, and to aid nature in paving the way for the return of new, abundant and glorious health.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ill of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio, at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

instance here tutoring children and peddling laces from door to door. Luisa, who once threw away the opportunity to become a queen, by eloping with her children's tutor, is said to be writing the story of her madcap experiences which astonished the world decades ago.

When her husband, the Crown Prince, divorced her, Luisa quickly tired of her tutor and married Signor Enrico Toselli, a famous Italian composer and musician of that day.

Rumor said that Luisa chose Toselli as a husband because she had found the decorous court life in Saxony unbearable and wanted to live among the Bohemian folk of the operatic world.

For a time she and Toselli enjoyed an ideally happy life. Though ignored by all her former friends and cut off by her family, Luisa was content with her new husband and the child which blessed their union.

But after a few years Toselli refused to work, preferring to live on his wife's income. They separated and the child was given to its maternal grandparents for rearing.

For a long time Luisa disappeared, but in 1911 a book written by her and telling many secrets about her life as a grand duchess and crown princess created a furor in royal circles.

Her husband, then king of Saxony, was so exasperated that he sought to have her restrained. During the war when the Germans took possession of Belgium, Luisa complained that her Teuton enemies were persecuting her.

TINY AUTO USED TO ADVERTISE FUEL

Xenians got their first view of the new Austin automobile, the British importation, here Wednesday.

The car was a special advertising the Fleetwing Ethyl Gasoline Corp., a super high test fuel for automobiles, and was brought to Xenia in the interests of the Schmidt Oil Co., S. Detroit St.

The car is now being assembled and distributed in this country but had not appeared here before and it attracted considerable attention on the streets Wednesday.

IF YOUR PULSE IS WEAK

the scheme of this tight-wad Scotchman may strengthen it up a little; he set his house ablaze so the fire department could water his lawn; we believe that "bird" would clip his guardian angel's wings!

It wouldn't weaken your pulse any if you'd stop here for good oil. Quaker State Oil is the best on the market, bar none and the price is no higher. It will give you no trouble at all and you will get more miles per dollar, more driving satisfaction per mile.

"Mickey" McFadden's stentorian voice rang out over moor and fen in the regions adjacent to Cox Field Wednesday evening as the little catcher for the Critter team spurred his mates on to greater endeavor and steadied his pitcher in the approved and accepted manner.

"Mickey's" voluble bass is getting to be a tradition at Cox Field, where fans listen for his deep-throated coaxing from behind the bat before they know that all is right with the world. McFadden is rated as the greatest pitcher-coaxer in the two loops, partly because he talks to the pitcher in a tone that can be heard around the field.

"Mickey" sounds like a big-league backstopper when he up-winds his tonsils and projects a few remarks from down around his shoe-tops for the benefit of his playmates.

Lew McCoy, catcher for the Langs, could pose for those Murad advertisements about when to be nonchalant, as his pitcher tosses a high or wide one.

Lew throws his chin in the air with the manner of a bored grande dame and achieves the return to the pitcher with a diffident air that impels the thought that he smokes Murads.

There is a story going the rounds about a recent fishing trip of a number of Xenians to Canada, when Mart Schmidt bore the brunt of a practical joke and that famous old baiter, General Pili, played a prominent part. It is impossible to tell the story in this column, however, because it would be necessary to mention Pili, and to do so would be an advertisement for the people who make Pili, and they might not like it.

The Lang Chevrolet softball team, riding at the head of the procession in the National League, is going to give the fans plenty of free entertainment this week-end.

The Langs have booked the Reeder Printers of Washington, C. H. for the second half of a double header at Cox Field Friday evening sequel to the Geyer-Carroll-Blinder game and will play the rub game of a series with the Robbins and Myers Co. team of Springfield at Kilkare Park Sunday afternoon.

The latter game will be staged as a feature of a picnic for Lang employees and Lang softball players. Bill Baxley, who is the Dan Howley of the Langs, also announces that the Langs are already planning a victory dinner for the end of the season. He hastens to add, however, that the team is not counting its chickens before they are incubated, but that the victory dinner is planned whether the softball team wins the league pennant and city championship or loses both. Even if the boys wind up the season in the cellar (any beta?) the dinner will be held.

Joe Hagler, the Xenia race horse trainer, seems to have picked off a live one in Ray Henley, the colt owned by his father, which Joe has in his stable this year. The little pacer is going good, and it looks as if Joe should have a money winner in the three-year-old pacing events on the circuit he covers this summer.

Defeat of the Carroll-Binders by the Downtown Country Club Tuesday evening placed the winners within one game of the league-leading Langs. The Langs have won eight and lost two games for a percentage of .800 while the Downtowners have achieved seven victories and three defeats for a percentage of .700. Another victory for the Downtowners and a defeat for the Langs would put the teams even. The Downtowners have achieved this position by playing good ball and getting good pitching, although the team has never been strong at bat.

John Haller celebrated his debut at shortstop for the Carroll-Binders Tuesday night by getting two hits and a run in five trips to the plate. Haller was playing his first game with the club, having been released to that team by the Graham Paints. The release has been approved by the softball commission.

FIREMEN ANSWER TWO MORE ALARMS

Firemen were summoned Thursday noon at 11:20 o'clock to extinguish a grass fire along the tracks of the B. and O. Railroad on Dayton Ave., at Little St. The fire was started from sparks from a passing locomotive. The lot is owned by Bernard Klein, W. Second St.

A run was made by the department to the O. S. and S. O. home Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock when an electric iron had been left connected and set fire to an ironing board. The accident happened in the new hospital building at the Home. No damage resulted from the small blaze.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Moderate temperatures were promised New York today, but despite the drop in temperature, heat deaths continued with two new victims reported. Drowning also claimed two additional lives.

GRAHAM PAINTS SNATCH 4 TO 2 VICTORY FROM CRITRIONS HERE

Pitcher Herman Wells of the Critter team pitched himself out of two bad spots in the National League game with the Graham Paints at Cox Field Wednesday evening but he couldn't keep on doing that forever so the Paints improved their percentage points with a 4 to 2 victory in a well-played and interesting game.

Wells found himself in a bad spot in the first when L. Cope singled and Briley walked, with one out, but he got Kersey on in the hole again in the third when Bice singled but two force outs kept the runners from second and Kersey fled out.

Wells was in a hole in the fifth, however, and his support failed him at a crucial moment and two runs scored and he was in the hole again in the eighth and the Paints snatched out two more runs to win the game. The Critterians, after starting ably by scoring two runs on four hits in the opening stanza off the delivery of Kersey, were stopped when Downey, Regular Paints pitcher, relieved Kersey in the third and were held to three hits the rest of the game.

The losers manufactured their first two scores after one was out when Ernst singled and came home ahead of Hagler's terrific smash along the left field foul line that was good for four bases. H. Smith and Finlay followed with singles, but languished when Burke fanned and L. Cope took Hoag's roller. Their next best scoring chance came in the fifth when McFadden singled. He was forced at second by Ernst and Hagler followed with a single, but Atlas Smith popped up and Finlay hit out to centerfield.

Wells kept the Paints away from the plate until the fifth, although they got a hit each inning. In the fifth, Downey popped up to Finlay and Bice fled out to left. With two gone, Wells walked Cope. Bice walked to short but Hagler dropped the toss for a force out and all hands were safe. Kersey then walked and L. Cope and Briley scored on Hurst's double, tying the count. W. Cope was tossed out by Hagler. The Paints won the game in the eighth when Kersey opened with a single and scored on Hurst's double. W. Cope fanned but Haverstick's fly played Hurst. Muterspaw singled and Wells took Downey's pop-up, this ending the scoring. The defeat did not change the standings but pushed the Critterians further into the cellar. The Caddies play the Ki-Ro team in an American League game Thursday evening.

PHILL CORR RELEASED BY DOWNTOWNERS AND SIGNS WITH LANG CHEVROLET TEAM

Phil Corr, star catcher for the Downtown Country Club in the National League, has been given his release from that club and has been signed by the Lang Chevrolet team, leaders of the same league, it is announced.

The public announcement was made after the Softball Commission had approved the transfer, upon examining the written release given by J. W. Purdon, secretary of the Downtown Country Club, and Corr's written request for approval to transfer to the Langs.

Corr will play with the Langs for the first time Friday evening when this team meets the Reeder

Printers of Washington, C. H., in the second game of a double header at Cox Field in which the Geyers and Carroll-Binder team will furnish the curtain raiser.

He played baseball at the University of Illinois and was rated as one of the best catchers in the league this year. Jimmy McCurran has been handling the backstopping for the Downtowners in the absence of Corr on several occasions and will probably continue in that position. The Langs have been using Lew McCoy behind the bat, and John Gibney and even Joe Smittle have had turns at the catching end of Lang batteries.

CITY COMMISSION TO CONSIDER QUESTION OF FILLING VACANCY

Possibility of the election of a city commissioner to fill the unexpired term of the late E. B. Light-hiser at the regular meeting of commission Thursday night was believed vague today, although it was admitted that the question would be discussed.

Commissioner Harry M. Fisher was expected to arrive home Thursday from Wolf Lake Park, Mich., where he has been spending two weeks, shortening his trip in order to be present at the commission session.

A host of candidates for the place made vacant by the death of Mr. Light-hiser loomed Thursday. One commissioner said that he has received the applications of seventeen persons who wish to step into the office.

Among those mentioned as applicants are Emerson B. Curtis, Edward J. Mehl and James F. Savage. One commissioner at least, is said to strongly favor the appointment of Mr. Savage who several weeks ago was named to the new police pension fund board of trustees.

The term to which Mr. Light-hiser was elected will expire December 31, 1931. To be elected to fill the vacancy a candidate must receive three of the remaining four votes.

Besides the expected discussion of a prospective commissioner, the proposed purchase of the transmission system in Xenia of the Dayton Power and Light Co. was on the program for Thursday night's commission meet.

This question will probably reach a vote. Decision of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association taken Monday night, to ask the commission to no longer delay action in the matter of a resolution filed with that body two months ago in which it was requested that the purchase of the system be considered brought the matter to a head, it is believed. Ownership of the transmission system by the city would pave the way for municipal ownership of a power plant or open the way to competitive bidding by other concerns on the power and light contract it is said.

"UPSTREAMERS" MEET

The eighth and last meeting of the Caeasacreek "Upstreamers" Club was held at the home of the leader, E. D. Haines, this week. Games were played, followed by a business meeting. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

A special meeting of the club will be held Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of Roy Linton.

"FUTURE FARMERS" MEET

The "Future Farmers" 4-H Club met at Shawnee Park, Friday, July 18. Harper Bickett gave a talk on demonstrations to the members. The regular meeting of the club followed Mr. Bickett's talk and Leonard Bootes gave a talk on potatoes and the district camp. The next meeting will be held at Shawnee Park, August 1. All members are urged to attend and bring their record books.

SEWING CLUB HAS MEETING

The "Needle-Art" 4-H Club met at the home of the leader, Mrs. Cora Bootes, Thursday afternoon. The members present answered roll call by naming their favorite flower. An individual demonstration was given by Catherine Shane. It was planned to hold a picnic Friday, July 25 at Forest Park, Dayton. Members are urged to bring well-filled picnic baskets and families of members are also invited to attend. All those planning to attend are asked to meet in front of Dunkel's Grocery, W. Main St., Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday afternoon, July 29, at the leader's home. All sewing and record books must be completed at this time.

BOMB WRECKS APARTMENTS

CHICAGO, July 24.—Search for a man and woman was begun by police today following a bomb explosion last night which shattered the first floor of a sixty-foot apartment building in Roosevelt Park.

The bomb was placed in the doorway of the cleaning establishment of L. Nemzer and the explosion wrecked the shop. Residents of the apartments above fled to the streets bewildered.

Lyle Norris, an eyewitness, said he was walking toward the building when the unidentified couple halted him and warned him away, saying there was a bomb in the doorway.

AUTOIST KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—A fractured skull and a broken neck which she sustained when the little roadster which she was driving collided with another automobile here, today had caused the death of Miss Thelma Lambrecht, 25.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost four weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat." Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood contained in the six or eight veins are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

FORMER XENIAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Jennie Schilling Greene, wife of John W. Greene, former Xenian, died at her home, 121 S. Summit St., Dayton, early Thursday, according to word received by local relatives. She had been seriously ill for a long time.

Mrs. Greene was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schilling of Xenia, was born and reared in Xenia, and was before her marriage a teacher in public schools of Xenia and Xenia Twp. She lived here for some time after her marriage to Mr. Greene who was formerly connected with The Eavey Co. Surviving her are her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Richard Merkle, Wyoming, O., and Miss Elizabeth Greene, at home, and by a brother, Herman Schilling, Springfield. While in Xenia she was a member of the First Reformed Church.

Emil Eichman and Mrs. L. L. Trader of Xenia and Mrs. David Pittz, Yellow Springs, are cousins of the decedent.

DAD'S GIRL

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER 53

It was Craig Donley. She caught her breath sharply and her hand fluttered to her throat, but she instantly recovered her poise and bowed to them. She put her hand into Mrs. Gregory's friendly grasp and held her cheek for an affectionate kiss, bowed to Gregory and turned to Donley.

"I brought Donley, without asking your consent," Mr. Gregory apologized, "because I knew he would be welcome, would rejoice with us over your good fortune, and to make our little party more complete. He has wanted very much to see you, again."

"I am very glad you brought him," she smiled, and Donley bowed above her hand, a new light in his eyes, as they appraised her in her new characterization.

"So! our ugly duckling has developed into the swan," he attempted a jest. "Forgive me, Miss Forester, for alluding to the past, but you played your part extremely well; and I am very glad, for your sake, that you have come into your own."

"Dinner is served," Haskins announced.

Clara Dee took Donley's proffered arm and led the way to the dining room. Her new role of hostess of the manor added an even greater appeal to her charm, a new dignity to her manner.

"If all experiments and theories formulated in the minds of men, could prove as successful as your father's have done, this would indeed be a progressive world," Donley observed as he watched Clara Dee. "His were unique, but entirely practical in spite of the fact that many would have contradicted him."

"Yes, and I, for one, was skeptical. I superintended the experiment entirely against my better judgment. I still contend that in most cases, it would have proved a failure," Gregory smiled admiringly at Clara Dee.

"Oh, no, Mr. Gregory, I disagree with you. But whatever another girl might have done, I should not exchange this last year for any other ten years of my life, even its most tragic events. I can never repay my father in gratitude, for what he did for me, however, unique his method may have seemed. He has now made it possible for me to really enjoy his wealth, as I ever should have done before," she declared.

"I agree with you, Clara Dee," said Mrs. Gregory. "And I believe that the majority of girls placed in your exact circumstances would have succeeded, perhaps not as well nor in the same way in so short a time, but they would have met their requirements."

"Then you believe that the girls of today are as dependable as the girls of past generations?" asked her husband.

"The girls of today are the daughters of the girls of yesterday and the granddaughters of the girls of a yet earlier day," she answered firmly. "The average is very little changed. If there are young people now who are immoral, there are many more who have inherited honor. Their pastimes may differ from those of past generations, but one cannot expect them to enjoy the pleasures of their ancestors any more than one would require them to appear in the absurd bustles and hoops, pompadours and hoops in which we once took so much pride."

"No matron has ever quite understood the maid, even though she were her own daughter; and no man has ever quite understood the youth, even though he were his own son. The small child pokes fun at the aimless motions of a baby, the youth scoffs at the childish efforts of the small boy, the young man hawks the youth, the elder man criticizes the younger elders for inspiration and admiration; we constantly disapprove our younger inferiors."

"But Clara Dee had just declared that she needed this severe trial," Gregory insisted.

"I believe that it has broadened her appreciation of life, but her integrity would have been proved under any other conditions. Sooner or later, she would have been called upon to make the same decisions under any circumstances, that she has now met with. Am I not right, Clara Dee?"

"I think you are right, Mrs. Gregory. It isn't that this year has changed the fundamental principles of my character so much, as it has given me a broader experience, a wider scope of life, which I could never have obtained in such surroundings as these. That is true of anything. Some people do not believe that education is essential to a successful life, but I believe that the more education one has, and the broader one's experiences, the more one lives."

"Then you think that those people live more who have less money and fewer comforts?" asked the criminal lawyer, skeptically.

"No, I do not," she replied thoughtfully. "I think that a person with limited means, takes more time for constructive thought if he is striving toward a goal, has more patience for solving difficulties, more appreciation for whatever success comes to him, gives more serious thought to his efforts and his own character. Which is not true of everyone without money, any more than the reverse is true of all wealthy men."

"I see no reason why the man or woman of wealth hasn't more cause to be happy, considerate and eager to progress. But somehow, so often they aren't. I believe it depends upon the viewpoint one has formed in early life. Mine was limited by the narrow training I had had, but is now broadened by this year of experience. Honor and character are inherited, I believe; happiness, interest, ambition, are the results of the training of environment."

"A splendid speech, little girl," Gregory exclaimed fervently. "Shall we drink a toast to the new-born Clara Dee—the product of a changed environment?"

They enjoyed him with enthusiasm and Clara Dee acknowledged her appreciation.

After dinner, in the drawing room, Clara Dee went to the piano and played the lilting strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," while Donley stood beside her, watching her and turning her music. When she had finished, he said, "A splendid interpretation, Miss Forester. Will you accept my sincere admiration for you and believe that I would give a great deal to have believed you innocent. Perhaps I might have, had I known you before."

"No, I don't think you would," she smiled. "Even Mr. Gregory believed me guilty, you know."

"I sincerely regret that I made your trial more difficult for you than was necessary. I certainly did not help you to claim your birthright. But I admired you immensely—and still do. When you have readjusted yourself to your new life, will you grant me the pleasure of seeing you occasionally? Or am I presuming too much?"

"Not at all. But I shall not have much time for pleasure. I expect to be very busy for the next few months."

"Why should you be busy now? You can afford to have everything done for you."

"Not everything. Personal services, yes. But I am going to superintend my own affairs with Mr. Gregory's aid and counsel."

On the third day, she had a special delivery letter from Don. He was greatly surprised at the news of her last letter, couldn't decide whether he was grieved or glad for her. He feared she was against him. Would she let him come soon, or was he assuming too much to even hope, now? He was depressed, even happy when he remembered that she was still his. She was probably more capable of managing the situation than was he—all that he could advise her was to marry him and forget her problems. He might help her intelligently then.

A week later, Bee, Esther and Janet were once more assembled in Clara Dee's sitting room. As soon as they had learned of her return, they came en masse. When she had satisfied their persistent volley of conflicting questions, they sat about her for a moment in awed, silent wonder. Clara Dee marvelled that the return of her wealth had given back to her all that she had lost with it: friends, social position, esteem, flattery, concern. As if they were component parts of a phase of life. And, indeed, they were. Her wealth was an "open sesame" to a certain strata of life. When she had lost the charm, her money, she had dropped out of it as if by magic. Her money returned—presto!—there she was again, in the upper strata.

She smiled wryly to herself, but decided to make no issue of their year's neglect. Best to accept it all as it was offered. It was she who had profited by that year, while they—had just idled away another twelve months.

Janet broke the spell. "And now, what about the festivities you promised us a year ago? I'm dying to do or see something different. Haven't you some coking new ideas from all your queer experiences?"

"Yes, a lot of new ideas. Jan, but not the kind you mean," Clara Dee replied. "You are welcome to help me whenever you wish, but I shan't 'startle the Grundies' as I once expected to do. I don't doubt but that they will be surprised, perhaps even have plenty to say, but I shan't care about that any more than I ever did."

The Theater

Lawrence Deppe, famous colored stage player, is reported to be visiting with relatives in Xenia, this column is informed by one of its good friends. Deppe has been the only colored star in the Broadway company presenting "Great Day" and has also played in the casts of "So This Is Paris" and "Love Bird."

Mr. Deppe is reported to be here with his wife and baby from New York City for a vacation visit with relatives. His visit brings him to the boyhood home of another great star of the color stage, Nobel Sibley, who has won success as a playwright, composer, lyricist, musical comedy star and producer since the days when he was home-talent favorite in these parts.

The colored stage player has, by his talents, demanded and obtained the respect of the theater world and his position in the field of entertainment has undoubtedly been enhanced by the talkies.

And switching gently from one topic to another, it may be interesting to readers to know that Raquel Torres will leave shortly to play the lead in Cosmopolitan's "Never the Twain Shall Meet."

The book, if we remember correctly, is by Peter B. Kyne. The Torres has rented her Malibu Beach cottage to John McCormack, the ex-husband of Colleen Moore.

RAQUEL TORRES

Paul Robeson, the great Negro singer, is reported now engaged in making a talkie for a British company, he having been widely and popularly accepted in England. The quest of the movies for variety has led them to the Negro stage for talent when they produce with and about colored characters and one of the best pictures of the last year was King Vidor's "Hallelujah," featuring an all-Negro cast, including the fascinating Nina May McKinney.

In like manner the pictures have opened the gates of entertainment to people of all colors, races and nationalities.

Raquel Torres, the Spaniard; Dolores del Rio, the Mexican; Anna May Wong, the Chinese; Clive Brook, the Englishman; Maurice Chevalier and Renee Adoree, the French; Karl Dane and Greta Garbo, the Scandinavians; Eric Von Stroheim and Emil Jannings, the Germans; Vilma Banky, the Austrian; Theodore Kosloff, the Russian; John McCormack, the Irishman; Antonio Moreno, the Italian mowing down lives and spreading desolation over one-third of the Italian "boot," climaxed their horrors by isolating thousands of potential victims from contact with the rest of the world.

Hopes are expressed the figure will not mount above the staggering total of 1,778, the worst loss of life since the destruction of Messina in 1908.

But until telephone and telegraph lines are restored and rescue parties reach the isolated communities nestled in isolated reaches of the Apennines, a complete and definite check of the casualties cannot be obtained.

Many guesses are being hazarded as to the toll in these ominous silent districts. Rescue crews, heroically combating the obstacles of buckled bridges, caved-in tunnels and wrecked railway tracks are gradually working their way toward them. Before many hours have passed some word is expected from the silent towns, which include Ripacandida, Avigliano, Filiano, Cancellario, San Severino and Sarno. Needless to say, hopes are held out the silence has not cloaked new and terrible tragedy.

With the speed and thoroughness characteristic of the Mussolini regime, the work of rescue and checking the full scope of the catastrophe is proceeding apace. Thousands of survivors are being evacuated from ruined towns, where crumbling houses and collapsing masonry combine with the danger of famine and disease to threaten the lives of those spared by the temblors.

Cracked and weakened homes, which a few hours before were happy hearthstones, are being pulled down by the dozen. At least 10,000, according to official estimates, were either destroyed or rendered unfit for human habitation.

The greatest loss of life, according to the Italian government, occurred in Avellino province, where 1,400 were killed and more than 2,000 were injured, with 2,000 homes in ruins. It is this once thriving province which is now the focal point of rescue efforts.

Authorities, restoring order with the help of troops scattered hastily over the stricken area, pushed rescue and relief work with redoubled vigor today. Hundreds of dead were buried side by side amidst scenes that recalled war days after heavy fighting; the injured were treated by field doctors and were cared for by emergency hospitals; tottering buildings were torn down and others strengthened, and drinking water, food, clothes and tents were supplied to the survivors.

Hasty surveys of the ruined communities disclosed that at Ariano eighty buildings collapsed, with 400 made uninhabitable. The town hospitals escaped damage, however, and immediately were transformed into relief stations. A temporary telegraph station has been set up in the public square.

Villanova, a town of 3,000 population was completely razed by the successive shocks. Four hundred inhabitants were killed and 400 were injured. Grim stories of half-crazed, half-naked people running and stumbling through its streets crying and shouting among the debris seeking relatives was brought back from the first returning members of the earlier relief expeditions.

Other towns which are known to have suffered severely included Sannicola, where not a house was left standing; Lacedonia, Aquilonia and Montecalvo.

First reports that four Americans had been killed in the vicinity of Naples by the earthquake were discredited by Consul General Louis G. Drefus, Jr., who issued an announcement stating no Americans were killed or injured.

Troops were posted everywhere to prevent looting and disorder; canteens and food supply wagons appeared early in the day, the scores of Red Cross workers endeavored throughout the day to alleviate the suffering of the hundreds of injured. Army airplanes cruised low over the stricken area dropping supplies and photographing the desolated sections in order to secure a basis for concentrated relief action.

All parts of Italy not damaged by the earth convulsions today eagerly offered their aid to the prostrated central south, organizing relief campaign and taking up collections for the sufferers. Pope Plus XI sent messages of condolences and took steps to furnish aid through the church organization.

The epicenter point of the earthquake was at Melfi, forty miles north of Potenza, midway between the two coasts. The extinct volcano Monte Vulture is located there. The other provinces which received the heaviest blows were Benevento, Avellino, Salerno, Foggia and Bari.

Melfi is an important wine and oil trade city. During the thirteenth century it was the capital of the kingdom of Naples. For a time it was feared the shocks had reawakened the ancient volcano, and residents have been warned.

Oh Boy! What Joy
LIFT CORNS RIGHT OUT
The English Way

Right from England comes the new, better, joyful way to take out corns—roots and all.

Callouses go also and you can rub off that hard skin on heels and toes with your hand—the magic treatment.

Ask Sayre's Drug Store or any leading druggist for a package of Radox—put 2 tablespoonfuls in a gallon of hot water—do this for 3 or 4 nights in succession—then lift out the corns.

This joyful exhilarating foot bath is simply great—you'll enjoy every minute of it and your burning, sore, tired, aching feet will feel better than they have for years—ask for Radox and foot comfort will be yours. Adv.

clear of the slopes, where great fissures already have appeared.

Inhabitants in several of the stricken provinces, horrified and dazed by the events of Tuesday night, almost unanimously turned to their community churches for consolation. Crowds demanded in all parts of the earthquake area that statues of the Madonna be placed outside the remains of the churches and hundreds knelt in the littered squares to pray.

A dramatic spectacle was enacted in Naples, where thousands gathered in the public square before the damaged cathedral to murmur prayers while Mass was celebrated inside and the Te Deum sung. When finally the skull of the city's patron saint—Saint Gennaro—was carried outside the cathedral and blessing was extended to the worshippers, religious fervor swept the masses and shouts and chants rose high above the hubbub.

The private apartments of the archbishop of Naples were seriously damaged by the temblors.

ESCAPED PRISONER BACK IN OHIO PEN FARMER GORED BY BULL SEVERELY HURT

COLUMBUS, O., July 24.—The gates of Ohio State Penitentiary here closed behind William Huffman, notorious robber who is wanted in many Eastern cities, for the first time since he made his sensational escape over the walls in 1919.

Huffman, in the custody of two prison guards, arrived here today from New York where he was captured two weeks ago on a tip from Columbus detectives.

He was sentenced to the penitentiary in 1918 to serve from five to thirty years for burglary. He escaped a year later and was the object of a nation-wide search for eleven years. In penalty for escaping, Huffman today began serving a seven-to-thirty year term.

You DECIDE

If it's performance you want in heating your home, you can not ask for greater performance than Automatic Gas Heat will give. When temperatures vary as much as 20 to 30 degrees within a single day, Gas Heating assures even constant temperatures within the rooms.

GAS HEAT

—with automatic control turns the heat off and on during the day or night, without anyone's attention, to maintain a constant temperature. On cool mornings (even in summer) when the temperature outside drops below a comfortable figure the Gas Furnace compensates with a comfortable indoor temperature.

Fall is coming; then Winter, followed by a Spring of varying temperatures. You know the erratic Fall weather—chilly nights and mornings. Children require some heat in the home on such days. Now is the time to install Gas Heat while your furnace is not in operation.
